General Carranza

After Information on Reported
Murder of Americans—Gen.
Carranza Promises Truth in the Benton Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—General Carranza's announcement that he had appointed a special commission to investigate the reported murder by General Villa of William Benton, a British subject, coupled with the declaration from Great Britain that she would not look to the United States for action as a result of the incident was generally accepted today as meaning the abandonment of the expedition of American and British representatives who were to have gone to Chihuahua to examine Benton's body. England's withdrawal at this time and Carranza's professed determination to investigate the Benton killing of his own accord will put the United States, it is believed, in the position of a patient observer of developments with no present necessity for further inquiry into the Benton episode.

The decision of Carranza to ferret out the truth of the Benton execution will mean a test of his authority over Villa, according to many officials here, and will further demonstrate whether the constitutionalists intend to extend protection to foreigners and make reparation for injury done them.

Among the reasons for which there is little tendency to press the inquiry on the part of the United States and Great Britain is the fact that by this time Benton's body must be badly decomposed. Evidence of a conclusive character, as yet undisclosed, has been in the hands of officials for several days.

Next steps in the situation seemed to depend on Carranza. His declaration that the United States has no right to inquire about the welfare of any foreign subjects but her own will not be accepted by the Washington government. Carranza's friends here were hopeful today that he would eventually alter his position on this point and reveal a friendly attitude toward the United States.

While pressure that had been expected from Great Britain over the Benton case has been removed, the American government is much concerned over the reported murder of Gustav Bauch and Clemente Vergara, both American citizens, the one by constitutionalists and the other by Mexican Federalists. Demands for information in each case have gone forth from the state department.

BIG CROWDS GATHER AT POLICE STATION

To Hear Tango Case or Get a Glimpse at the Tangos in a Demonstration of Their Art—Officer Clark the Cyn-
sure of All Eyes

The excitement in and about the Market street building this morning was the most intense of any witnessed there for many moons. Not since the Blondin murder, or perhaps the days when the great textile strike was at its height, and rioters were being carted to the police station as fast as the black Maria could take them in, have so many sought admittance to the police court where officers were on guard above and below stairs. And what was it all about?

Answer—Two tangos, Frank Hennessy and Angelina Marcotte, who were arrested for tangoing at Lincoln hall on the evening of February 19, scheduled for trial and devotees of the tango, and others, filled with morbid and other kinds of curiosity, thronged the court room and advanced in a determined body on the stairway officers at the door. It was terrible confusion for such a little thing, but there is no accounting for the mad and mad of the human family.

The only thing missing was the overcrowded gallery and that is a thing of the past, there was a time when the court room was allowed to crowd the gallery, but the occupancy of it was discontinued by order of Judge Enright, who feared that some day it might give rise to a riot.

Officer Clark, the official dancer, inspector, came out for more than his share of attention. He was pointed out as the man responsible for the arrest of the two tangoers, and the one who offered who is generally held to be the tango's property. Improperly, of the dance. Not only does he pass upon the tango, but he also penetrates the mysteries of the tango, duck, Argentine, chicken dip, bunny hug, grizzly glide and other kindred dances. Mr. Clark is "some dancer," they say. What might pardonably be remarked upon was the presence of so many men well along in years, "front row" men with scattering hairs, who seemed willing to stand till doomsday just to get a peek at the tangoers. But then it must not be forgotten that some tangoing was expected, it having been noticed about that the tangoers would give an exhibition, as matter of evidence, to prove that they were safely within the precincts of modesty when accosted by the police officer at Lincoln hall.

It was also reported that Officer Clark might "chase a partner" just to show his side of the case and demonstrate his postures and motions, that he considered objectionable. Several cases preceded the trial of the tangoers and the crowd grew impatient. The concern manifested was almost laughable when, gray-haired men began seats of tangoes. The spectators evidently believed it was their privilege to talk, but they were quickly disillusioned when the court told the officers to quell the disturbance, or clear the court. Probation Officer Shaffery had an unusually large list of releases this morning. No less than fourteen first of-tenders were allowed to go forth after spending the night in the police station. Cornelius Haggerty made his third appearance of drunkenness within the year. He was in very bad physical shape this morning and his case was continued until Saturday. James A. Riley pleaded not guilty to being drunk last night. The two officers who made the arrest testified that the defendant was staggering and gave other manifestations of being drunk. Defendant got four months and appealed.

Katherine Haskell was arrested yesterday afternoon on Middlesex street by Patrolman Drevett and brought into police court charged with drunkenness. She testified that she did not live with her husband and had several children to support. Judge Enright ordered a suspended sentence of four

ACCIDENTAL POISONING

THE HOUSE OF MISS MARGARET HARRINGTON'S SAID DEATH AFTER THAT OF SISTER

A very sad case occurred late yesterday afternoon when Miss Margaret F. Harrington, daughter of The Fashion Millinery store, and a well known young woman of this city, passed away at St. John's hospital, the cause of death being accidental poisoning. The death being accidental poisoning, the death was extremely sad, inasmuch as a sister of deceased, Miss Katherine Harrington, died in the morning.

Katherine Harrington had been an invalid for years and during her long illness her sister Margaret cared for her most devotedly, sitting at her bedside and getting but little sleep. A few minutes after Katherine's death yesterday Margaret went to a cupboard and took out a bottle containing a few drops of medicine, which she supposed to be a bottle of medicine. She was taken violently ill and retired to her bed, where she was found some time later in an unconscious condition.

Upon investigation it was found that she had drunk from a cup containing medicine used by her sister before death, and containing a great deal of morphine. The woman was rushed to St. John's hospital, where despite medical attendance she passed away shortly after 4 o'clock. The death certificate was signed by Medical Examiner J. V. Meigs, "accidental poisoning."

The third sister, Mary, is reported to be in a critical condition at the home, 126 Broadway, where the bodies of the two deceased sisters now lay in state side by side. The death of the Harrington sisters will come as a distinct shock to their many friends by whom they were held in high esteem.

PASSED AWAY TODAYRev. Joseph Lefebvre, O. M. I.,
Former Rector of St. Joseph's Church, Dead—Sketch of His Labors in the Order

Rev. Joseph Lefebvre, O. M. I., the dean of the Oblate fathers of this city, a former provincial of the order and former pastor of St. Joseph's parish, passed away at the rectory in Merrimack street this morning at 6:30 o'clock, the cause of death being a paralytic shock the venerable clergyman received on Feb. 25 during the supper hour. Fr. Lefebvre, who would have been 75 years old on April 3, was one of the best known priests of this city, and his demise will be keenly felt by his many friends in the various cities he has been stationed since his ordination.

Rev. Joseph Lefebvre, O. M. I., was born at St. Constant, Que., from the marriage of Joseph Alphonse Lefebvre and Marie Tremblay, both natives of Normandy, France. He studied in the Montreal seminary, where he graduated with honors in 1884, at which time he entered the Oblate order. He made his novitiate in Montreal and studied theology at the University of Montreal, where he was ordained to the priesthood in 1888. He remained at the university a number of years as professor of theology and later was transferred to St. Saverius, Que., where he helped build the parish, remaining there until 1891.

In 1891 the distinguished clergyman came to Lowell as assistant pastor of St. Joseph's parish, making his home at the rectory of the Immaculate Conception church. Two years later he was appointed pastor of the parish, and in 1898 he was elected provincial of the order for Canada and the United States and served as such in a very efficient manner for two consecutive terms, or six years, being stationed in Lowell. In 1900 he was called to Europe by the provincial general on important business and during his sojourn abroad he attended the Paris exposition. Four years later he made another voyage across the ocean and visited His Holiness Pope Pius X. In 1904 he was appointed pastor of St. Joseph's parish and at that time he celebrated his golden jubilee. In 1907 he was succeeded by the lamented Rev. Joseph Campbell, O. M. I.

At the close of his pastorate at St. Joseph's, Fr. Lefebvre was appointed chaplain of the French-American orphanage by His Eminence Cardinal O'Donnell and held the position until the time of his death. On Wednesday morning, Feb. 25, Fr. Lefebvre celebrated mass in the private chapel of the rectory and all day he seemed in good health, although his advanced age began to show. In the evening he was seized with a paralytic shock and despite the best efforts of medical skill he passed away this morning.

MRS. E. D. PARKER'S CASH

Paid on Advice of Medium Who Said Mr. Parker's Spirit Advised Investment—Suit Entered

George A. Mueller, an embalmer residing at 237 Worthen street, this city, has filed a bill in equity in the Suffolk county superior court, alleging that Mrs. Elizabeth D. Parker, for whom he is guardian, made certain investments on the advice of her dead husband's spirit, through Mrs. Anna Coggeshall, a well known local spiritualistic medium. There are many Lowell defendants mentioned in the bill, which is to recover moneys and properties received by the several defendants from Mrs. Parker.

Elizabeth D. Parker is the widow of William H. Parker who died in October, 1898, and left his wife $150,000 in moneys and property. On Oct. 8, 1913, Mr. Mueller was appointed guardian to Mrs. Parker after she had been legally adjudged insane. The guardian now demands the moneys and properties received by the several defendants from Mrs. Parker, and offers to return to said defendants the several alleged shares of stock, promissory notes, bonds, coupons and evidences of debt, rights and properly delivered by them to said Elizabeth D. Parker, and which have come into his possession as her guardian. His allegation is that in or prior to the year 1900, Elizabeth Parker became insane, and that during all of the time subsequent thereto she was incapable of transacting business. The defendants named in the bill are Mrs. Anna Coggeshall of this city, Delmar G. Hurd and Alfred McLeod, alleged to have been interested in the Ideal Buckle Mfg. Co., a corporation in which it is further alleged, Mrs. Parker was induced to purchase 400 shares of stock at $1 per share, which were delivered to her in 1900 and 1901, and for which she paid the sum of $4375. Delmar Hurd is alleged to have been president of the Ideal Buckle Mfg. Co., and Alfred McLeod its promoter, and these two defendants, it is alleged, induced Mrs. Parker about Dec. 29, 1900, to consult Anna Coggeshall, this medium, and that said Anna informed her that the spirit of her deceased husband, William Parker, advised and directed the purchase of said shares. Other defendants in the bill are as follows: Jesse Van Horn of this city, a broker for one to whom, it is alleged, Mrs. Parker was introduced by McLeod, and with whom she transacted business; the Old Lowell bank in which Mrs. Parker deposited money.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

At the regular meeting of the school board held last night one ballot was taken for the election of a principal for the Edison school to succeed the late Calvin W. Burbank. Christopher J. Hagan received 10 votes and John F. Moran received 9 votes and there were two members abstaining. Mr. Lambert and Mr. Simpson decided that Miss Francis Webster be appointed temporarily to serve as acting principal at the pleasure of the board. Leave of absence for the remainder of the school year was granted to Bertha M. Rowlandson and for two months to Marlon E. Greene. It was voted on recommendation of the committee on school houses and hygiene that a small strip of land adjoining the Franklin school yard be leased to George F. White for $5 a year.

A letter from Henry F. Carr of the park commission, asking for a conference on the matter of raising funds for playgrounds, was read by the secretary and it was voted to invite Mr. Carr to meet with the board at the next regular meeting, March 31, at 7:30 o'clock.

Several applications for teachers' positions were read by the secretary and a letter from Daisy O. Abbott asking to be considered for a position in the industrial school was referred to the principal of that school.

Supt. Molloy read ten letters from many applicants for the position of principal of the Edison school but, according to the school rules, no out-of-town applicant can be considered until the local field has been thoroughly canvassed or until the fact is established that local candidates for the position are not fitted for it. The letters came from Mr. James E. Morse of Andover; Frederick A. Galt of Malden; Henry T. Francis of Woburn; Melvin A. Arnold of Everett; Thomas L. Men of South Framingham; W. M. Cullen of Lewiston; Mr. Andrew G. Johnson of Pawtucket; R. L. William G. Currier of Hyannis; and Martin A. Seymour of Danvers.

Ballot for Principal
Mr. Campbell, as member of the subcommittee of the Edison school, referred to the death of the principal of that school, Calvin W. Burbank, and suggested that it would not be advisable to allow the school to go along without a governing head. Mr. Thompson seconded Mr. Campbell's motion and before going to the polls suggested that a page in the annual report of the school committee be dedicated to Mr. Burbank who had served the city so faithfully as teacher for 40 years. He offered this as a motion and it was seconded by Mr. Campbell. Then the question came on Mr. Campbell's motion for the election of a principal.

Mr. Simpson Not Ready
Mr. Simpson said that while he realized it was important that the position of principal at the Edison school should be filled as soon as possible he thought it would be best to wait a little while in order to give the members an opportunity to look the ground over more thoroughly. "Mr. Burbank," he said, "was a very efficient principal and we should endeavor to get his successor, a man thoroughly fitted for the position. I have not had time to give the matter due consideration for Mr. Burbank has been dead but a few days. I will not be able to vote at this time."

Mr. Campbell Replied
Mr. Campbell said: "I feel that I am justified in moving for the election of a principal for the Edison school. I do not mean any offense to the memory of

Mr. Burbank. I thoroughly appreciate his man and teacher, but he has been permitted to live. I think I will disagree with him that he could not have held office longer than June 30. I view it as a fact that it cannot be said that there is anything very sudden about choosing his successor. The Edison school is a very important one. The district there is a rather unusual one and I think it behooves us to take some action to select a principal."

Dr. Lambert Would Wait
While admitting that the district was a very important one, Dr. Lambert thought the committee ought to take enough time to consider the various applicants. He spoke of how nobly the position had been filled by Mr. Burbank and he thought his successor should be a man of wide experience. "As far as I know," said Dr. Lambert, "there are but two local candidates for the position and not until tonight did I know there were ten out-of-town applicants for the position. If a majority of the board is satisfied with either one of the two local candidates, well and good, but I feel that I would like to look over the ground a little more thoroughly. I think we would be looking after the interests of the school by appointing the assistant principal as acting principal for the time being. I think she would be capable of taking care of any immediate necessities that might arise. We should move very cautiously in this matter. I would like to see the motion for the election of a principal prevail tonight."

School Without Head
Mr. Thompson said he did not think that an important school as the Edison should be allowed to go along without a head. As for the assistant principal, Miss Webster, he had the highest regard, but he could see no reason why the committee should not elect a principal at once. He said that local candidates had had ample time to file their applications and he felt that the two local candidates in the field were worthy of consideration.

Dr. Lambert Agrees
Dr. Lambert said he would feel like supporting the two local candidates until he had done a little canvassing. "I am not saying but what I have had ample opportunity to canvass."

vass," said the doctor, "but I feel that there isn't any very great necessity of proceeding to the election of a principal at this time. I am sure that the school will not suffer under the able guidance of Miss Webster."

Man at the Helm
Mr. Campbell called Dr. Lambert's attention to the records of a meeting held August 21, at which time a principal for the Greenhalge school was elected. He said that the election was made within fifteen minutes after the resignation of the former principal was read. "Why isn't this a parallel case?" I had not time then to look over the candidates," said Mr. Campbell, and he then called for the question. The motion was put and the result was as follows: Campbell and Thompson for Hagan; Galt for Mesban and Lambert and Simpson not voting.

For Temporary Principal
Mr. Campbell then moved that Mr. Hagan be appointed to serve temporarily, and at the pleasure of the board, as principal of the Edison school. Mr. Thompson seconded the motion. Mr. Campbell called attention to the fact that Mr. Hagan had served one year at the Edison school as principal, "and I found," said Mr. Campbell, "that the parents were perfectly satisfied with his administration. I repeat that anybody should be at the head of the school. It is no place for a woman."

Compromising the Honor
Dr. Lambert said the board would be compromising itself by appointing instead of electing a principal. If there is not a majority to elect a principal, he said, I would not vote to appoint a man who is an active candidate. I would object very strenuously to such procedure.

Mr. Campbell said he had made the motion in good faith and that he did not think he was compromising himself in any way. He called for a yeas and nays vote on his motion and it was defeated by a vote of four to one.

Miss Webster Appointed
Mr. Simpson then moved that Miss Webster be made temporary head of the Edison school. "Realizing, as I do that there should be some head to the school," said Mr. Campbell, "I will second the motion," and it was voted unanimously that Miss Webster be appointed acting principal to serve at the pleasure of the board. The question of salary was referred to the finance committee. Adjourned.

ONE YEAR AS PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Washington residents of many years to whom the ways and manners of a president have been a matter of intimate observation, have watched President Wilson with interest. The president completed one year as chief executive today.

other speeches were made to the American Red Cross society last December and one to the Daughters of the American revolution. His trips out of Washington have been few. While Congress has been in session the president has made it a point to be at his desk continuously.

Mr. Wilson appears with a well-known aide only at army or navy functions and the motor cycles which used to precede the president's motor car have been substituted by an automobile with secret service men whose duty is to sit conspicuously behind so that the president drives about Washington practically without little attention.

MINOR LEAGUE OWNERS

TO MEET IN NEW YORK AND DISCUSS LOSS OF MANY PLAYERS TO FEDERAL LEAGUE

NEW YORK, March 4.—The loss of many players to the Federal league and plans to offset the invasion will be discussed here Friday by owners and representatives of minor league baseball clubs.

The special meeting has been called by the international league, Thomas M. Chivington of the American association, and John H. Farrell of Auburn, secretary of the National Association of Minor leagues, will represent more than 30 per cent of the smaller leagues. All the club owners of both leagues will be here by Friday and it is likely that the big organizations will get together and help the minors in any way they can.

In view of the Federal invasion of Brooklyn, the international league may reconsider its action last month and transfer the Jersey City club to Brooklyn to play at Ebbets field when the Federals are at Washington park. Baltimore and Buffalo will also have to defend themselves against the Federal invasion while the American association must formulate plans to fight the Federals in Kansas City and Indianapolis.

Beauty Doctor Tells Secret

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To half a pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbos Compound, and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp diseases, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Genuine Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention The Lowell Sun.

DON'T GET BALD

You can prevent it. Crudol, prepared crude oil, but with no disagreeable odor, and, stainless, makes scalp massage easy, pleasant and effective. Crudol does not make the hair oily, and, therefore, the hair does not have to be washed after its use. Leave it on, it penetrates right down to the roots of the hair.

Crudol will destroy dandruff, stop falling hair, promote its growth, stimulate the roots, prevent itching scalp and make fine luxuriant hair. It contains no alcohol. Feed the hair roots with Crudol; don't dry them with alcohol. It will not change the color of the hair.

MARCONIGRAMS FROM SPEEDING EXPRESS TRAINS

1 and 2.—Railway stations with wireless towers. 3.—Operator in station receiving marconigrams. 4.—Wireless equipment on Pullmans. 5.—Train with wireless leaving station. 6.—Operator on train.

By JOHN J. BREEN.

It is more than possible that next fall, when the world's baseball series gets around, one can sit in a Pullman on any of the big roads and get the detailed play of the game while the train is bowling along at a sixty miles an hour clip. While wireless telegraphy on passenger lines is yet in a rather primitive stage, the first real tests were so satisfactory that railroad men say that the possibilities are great, not only for conveying to the patrons on the do luxe limiteds, all the up to the minute big happenings of the world, but for throwing additional safeguards around railroad travel.

In fact, the utility of wireless on trains already has been practically demonstrated. On an express running at fifty miles an hour a conductor was taken ill. It was necessary to get a substitute at the next station, which happened to be thirty miles distant. Ordinarily this would have occasioned a considerable delay, as no word of the emergency could be brought to the station ahead of this train without an extra stop. By the use of the wireless the substitute was on hand when the train pulled in, and medical relief was also ready for the conductor. On another train there was an unusual crowd of passengers, and an extra car was ordered and waiting in readiness to be coupled when the train arrived. "Train wireless" not only has facilitated service, but has added another possibility for the drama novel hero. The train dispatcher by melodramatic fame will no longer have the glory to himself. The wireless operator on the Pullman car will share it. When bandits have uncoupled the engine and are gathering in the valuables of the passengers it will be up to the wireless man from his tiny compartment to call the police on a special to the wastes of Arizona cactus fields, the prairie dog tracts of the Dakotas, the moose barrens of New Brunswick and the heart of the Rock Mountains.

The wireless apparatus was installed in the forward part of the train. The aerial consisted of a wire reel over each of four cars supported at each corner by a stanchion two feet high. In the rear end of the second car from the front an operator's room was built, so that the receiving and sending instruments were under the center of the aerial.

To Revolutionize Railroad.

L. B. Foley, superintendent of telegraph on the road where the wireless was successfully tried, said:

"In my opinion the wireless will revolutionize railroading. We won't do the revolutionizing this week, maybe not this month, but the time is coming, and it is not far distant, when the wireless telegraph on trains will make the safety and convenience of railroad traveling fifty per cent greater than they are today, and as a preventive of accidents I think the wireless will prove of the greatest value."

"In the McAdoo tube under the Hudson and the New York subway, for example, the train dispatcher sits in his room and by flashing of lights knows exactly where every train is. If two trains get dangerously close together he can send a signal that will almost instantly stop one or both of them. I believe that the same thing can be done on railroads with the wireless. The dispatcher can sit in front of a board on which the location of each train on the line will be shown by wireless telegraph. If he sees trains getting too close together for safety he can send a wireless message that will stop one of them anywhere—out in the country miles from a telegraph station.

"But of course all this is in the future. At present we are only experimenting. As far as they have gone, however, the experiments justify the predictions. Our first doubt when we contemplated installing the wireless was about using the rails for grounding the electric current. You know there is a ground wire at every wireless station, but you can't have one from a moving train. So we tried sending our ground current to the rails when we made our first experimental trip. The scheme worked well and the first difficulty was overcome.

"And another problem was settled at the same time—that of supplying the electric current for the messages. We simply used the dynamo already in the train for lighting purposes. We had feared that they would not furnish sufficient current for the wireless or, if they did, that using it would weaken the lights. But we used all the electricity we needed and the lights were not perceptibly dimmed. I think it is certain that we can use the rails for ground wires and the ordinary lighting dynamo for our current. This was demonstrated on our first trip.

"Our next problem was to get our instrument on the train in tune with those in the stations. You see, on account of the tunnels and low bridges over the tracks, we cannot have a high aerial on the train. But high aerials are necessary if messages are to be sent any great distance, so we have built them high at the stations and are trying to work them with low aerial on the train. This makes the transmitting of messages between the train and the stations more difficult. The instruments have to be adjusted until they are in tune, but I believe this difficulty can be overcome.

"We sent and received messages so easily that we are convinced that the only thing required to perfect the service is an adjustment of the instruments until they are in tune."

What is perfectly plain is the fact that the advent of the wireless operator aboard a moving train adds just one more watcher who will be continually on the alert and can co-operate with the towerman in keeping the engine driver informed as to the state of the road ahead. Logically, the next development of the system will be a telephone installation extending from the room of the wireless operator to the cab of the locomotive, and perhaps even to the fireman's position if his task separates him from the engineer.

Expense Not Very Great.

Of course the question of expense must be considered always, and fortunately the outlay involved in the first trial was not prohibitive. The stationary plants have apparatus that cost $3,000 each, independent of the wireless towers, and the train equipment costs about half this. The operator need be little more skillful than the average railroad telegrapher.

"Train wireless," says the Scientific American in a recent article, "has shown the unlimited possibilities of safety and time saving by insuring that trains will be in communication at any speed and at any distance from stations regardless of line breaks from winter blizzards or from washouts, for which obscure signals or other extraordinary conditions."

In the experiment that was made it was shown that successful communication can be made with trains running at fifty miles an hour not only from the station that the train is approaching, but the one that is left behind. When the train had traveled too far to get the messages from the rear station on the traveling aerial it received them by relay from the forward station, whence they were transmitted back again to the operator on the Pullman. By this method the train was in constant communication with both stations.

The chief difficulty in train wireless—or, at least, one of the numerous obstacles to its successful use—was the necessity of equipping the train with a very low aerial. A vessel's lofty mast presents a far easier method of transmission than does the eighteen inch quadrangle of wire that is substituted for this on the roof of the speeding express train. But these low aerials, when their natural limitations are taken into account, work with a surprising degree of efficiency.

The result means that at no time need the train passenger be out of communication with his neighbors, even for an instant, and that the business world will be jacked up yet another notch. When wireless telegraphy is installed and transmitting harmonic instruments are perfected, the train de luxe will undoubtedly supply means for its "guests" to hear the operas and philharmonic concerts of New York, Boston and Chicago.

Shackleton May Use Motor Sledges

SHACKLETON AND AEROPLANE SLEDGES.

THERE is a difference among arctic explorers as to the availability of motor sledges which may be used in Sir Ernest Shackleton's south pole expedition. Among the explorers who have expressed their disapproval of this plan is Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary. Admiral Peary is a firm believer in the dog drawn sledges.

lie maintains there is no animal like the dog for endurance and faithfulness in the long, perilous journeys over the icy paths. While he concedes that a motor sledge can make better speed and carry large loads for short distances over smooth going paths, the dog, for the long race, is much more desirable. As he has expressed it: "If the motor sledge breaks down it cannot be eaten and is of no value whatever. Neither can it be burned for fuel."

Nevertheless one of the most interesting features of the equipment in the expedition which will leave Buenos Aires, South America, early in October, 1914, likely will be a couple of wingless air driven sledges. There may also be an "aeroplane taxi"—an aeroplane with sled runners and clipped wings.

The explorer has had the pulling power of such a machine worked out and finds that a sledge of this description is capable of dragging 7,000 pounds weight at the rate of from five to six miles an hour. It is proposed to have two such sledges built and thoroughly tested in Siberia or the north of Canada.

There is a particularly human and engrossing touch about antarctic days as seen by James Murray, biologist of Sir Ernest Shackleton's last expedition, and George Marston, artist to that great adventure and already chosen for the explorer's coming attempt to cross the south polar continent from sea to sea. As these "Shackleton's men" say of us all: "We know the story of the long marches, the blizzard days and the hungry days. We have lived with the explorers through the long polar night, the voyage through the ice, the building of the huts, the organization for the sledging and, finally, the long march toward the goal of their desire." But we do not know "the little incidents that go to make up the sum of the day's work, the humor and the weariness, the inside view of men on an expedition." Mr. Murray will tell you: "People imagine that the polar regions are cold, that their coldness is the chief thing about them, the main disadvantage of living there."

"It is not so. It is not cold, not so very cold—or, at any rate, it very often needs the thermometer to tell you so. You do not worry about it so long as you are in camp. It is a dry cold, so that in calm weather you do not notice it. In summertime you can go about clad only in pajamas (with boots, mitts and hat, of course). When you go on a sledging journey and are half starved and exhausted with hard work, it is different. Then you learn something about cold. I have lived for over a year in the antarctic and I know nothing of cold or hunger there. This is—yes! In short, life in the antarctic has been described as a picnic so long as you keep off sledging."

In very striking contrast are some of Mr. Marston's notes of his first impressions of sledging.

"Find a way of keeping the sleeping bag dry and you could defy any cold," he writes. "But how to do it? Snow creeps in in minute quantities be you never so careful, and owing to the fact that three men are sleeping in one bag with the cover drawn over their heads and closely 'logged' down, all the moisture from their breathing is condensed and frozen on to the fur. Snow and ice accumulate until in perhaps a fortnight the bag has doubled its weight. You turn in and the heat from your bodies thaws the accumulated ice, and drip drip, drip it drops on your clothing, soaking you to the skin, setting you shivering and shuddering for the rest of the night."

Later Mr. Marston lost his sleeping jersey.

"At night now," he wrote, "I have no extra clothing and, in spite of the kindness of my tent mates, I get very little sleep. Sometimes I am glad to have Wild put his arms around me, and on one occasion I had to pocket my pride and ask him to do it. But they are kindness itself, and every effort is made to keep me warm. I become indignant permanently, and I nearly suffocate them, in turn, chasing them into the corners of the bag as I extract a little warmth from them."

Woman Honored by President Wilson

MISS JANE A. DELANO, who has been awarded the Red Cross medal of merit by President Wilson for her work in organizing the town and country nursing service recently established by the Red Cross society, is one of the most foremost members of the nursing profession. In the new service of which she is the head there are enrolled 4,000 of the best nurses for active duty in time of war and disaster. Through this army it is possible for the Red Cross within a few hours' time anywhere in the country to get almost any number of nurses required for active service.

Miss Delano was born near Montour Falls, N. Y., and was graduated from the Bellevue Training School for Nurses, New York city, in 1886. Her first case after graduation was Abram S. Hewitt, then mayor of New York, and a couple of years afterward she went to Jacksonville, Fla., to take charge of the yellow fever hospital. A year later she went to El Paso, Ariz., to take charge of the Copper Queen Mining company's hospital, and then she went to Philadelphia as assistant superintendent of the Training School and Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania. She left there after six years to take a course in the Buffalo Medical Training school and then went to Randall's Island for a couple of years.

Miss Delano had a stormy career as superintendent of the nurses' training school at Bellevue hospital, New York, and later as superintendent of the institution. It was under her regime and because of the many innovations that she instituted that the nurses multiplied. But she stood her ground and won out and became president of the National Association of Nurses.

Miss Delano originated the regulation which forbade any woman nurse to speak with any of the doctors or male nurses while on duty. She did not approve of the young doctors taking pretty nurses to the theater and to dinner, not to mention automobile rides, and she proposed to stop it. There was a petition asking for Miss Delano's removal.

Then she posted a rule to the effect that the doorbell would not be answered after midnight and that nurses who could not get in before that time, would have to stay out. She followed this with orders requiring every nurse to have a napkin ring, she lengthened the term of the junior nurses' classes to three instead of two years, cut out "late permission" on Friday evenings and she threatened suspension to any nurse who allowed a patient to have more than two visitors a day.

MISS JANE A. DELANO.

To be superintendent of Bellevue hospital, which with its allied institutions, the Gouverneur, Harlem and Fordham hospitals, probably received and discharged at that time more patients than any other hospital in the world, was no small task. The appointment of a woman to fill that position, even temporarily, was regarded as a notable honor for the weaker sex. It is admitted that the selection by President Wilson of Miss Delano for this new Red Cross post is an admirable one. She is a splendid organizer and disciplinarian, and her advice has been sought in many of the leading humanitarian movements of the country.

COTTON OPPORTUNITIES

It has just been ascertained by the government department of commerce that this country is lagging behind the rest of the world in the proportionate relation of its international cotton trade with its opportunities for controlling the markets of all nations. Reports recently compiled show that of the $900,000,000 worth of cotton manufactures entering international markets in 1912, only 7 per cent. was bought from the United States—though this country produces over two-thirds of the world's supply of raw cotton. At the same time, during 1912, cotton manufactures to the amount of $55,500,000 were imported into the United States.

Here are figures that will give food for thought to the cotton mills of Lowell and the rest of the country. They point to a condition which should not exist and which was entirely preventable. If not remediable. In what ever branch of industry we may or may not excel, there can be no doubt that our manufacturers have always felt that American textile superiority was unchallenged. And yet though America grows two-thirds of the world's cotton supply, only 7 per cent. of the finished product of American manufacture is bought in the foreign market. In other words, all the nations of the earth may come here, buy our raw cotton, and, after having brought it to their manufacturing centers, may weave it and beat up in international competition. It is nothing short of a national disgrace that other countries should be able to bring their cotton products even into our own markets, and sell them to the tune of $55,500,000 in one year.

These out of keeping with the progressive spirit of the times may be tempted to attribute this reprehensible condition to the revised tariff, but the claim cannot be substantiated. The pitiful showing of America in the markets of the world is not new, but it is due to new conditions. In fact, taking the entire field of import and export as a whole, the year 1913 has more to show in our favor than the years immediately preceding. In the report of the secretary of commerce for 1913, he says: "Our foreign commerce has grown by leaps and bounds until during the fiscal year, ended June 30, 1913, it reached the great total of $4,279,000,000 in value." He also says more specifically in reference to the one item of finished cotton: "Our exports of crude food-stuffs and of crude materials of other kinds have fallen to a minor place, and the largest element in the greatest aggregate of foreign sales ever made is that of manufactured goods, and among these manufactured goods the item of fully finished manufactures is the largest." It will, therefore, be seen that the comparative failure of the United States to keep supremacy in the cotton industry, was less a failure under the new tariff than under the old—though improvement is almost negligible when we remember the insignificant 7 per cent. of cotton goods made in this country which represents American enterprise and industry before the progressive nations of the world.

The cause of America's failure to grasp the opportunity of leading all other nations of the earth in the extent of its cotton industry is mainly twofold—the old principle of high protection, and resulting failure to push its finished products scientifically and consistently. Notwithstanding the practical monopoly on raw cotton, the superiority of workmanship, the efficiency of labor and all the other elements that counted for efficiency, the American manufacturer built around himself and his business a tariff wall that kept his own little market secure and shut him out from the markets of Europe, Asia, Africa and the Orient. He blindly aimed at keeping the cotton industry to himself, and now the world tells him to keep his finished product to himself. How else may we understand the paltry 7 per cent.?

With regard to the second reason for America's failure to make the most of her unrivaled opportunity, the government in the past made little effort to extend our foreign markets and the American manufacturer made less. Only $60,000 or so was appropriated annually for the purpose of investigating foreign conditions, paying agents, etc. Most of the important commercial duties were left to the members of the consular service who had neither the time nor the training to get results. At last the government is aroused, and the department of commerce requested this year that $100,000 be appropriated for the purpose of extending American trade in South America, and a like sum for the rest of the world. The government also aims to increase its commercial agents, and in the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce there will be an increase of 31 employees, including many special investigators who are experts in every corner of the world.

The department of commerce is also instituting a thorough examination into the causes for the poor showing of the American cotton industry with the intention of "enlarging the foreign trade in this important branch of American industry." If under the new

of its provisions than from those who would amend it in any important particular.

The expected has happened in the declaration of Sir Edward Grey that if England is not satisfied with the protection afforded English subjects in Mexico, by this country, it will reserve the right to assume responsibility for such protection. Such an announcement will be an incentive to this government to take positive action and it may also serve as a warning to all factions in Mexico. If intervention must come the people of this country will support it, but they are certainly not in favor of it as a whole.

The hearing on the navigation of the Merrimack to be given at the state house on Friday before the rivers and harbors committee involves the commercial interests of the whole Merrimack valley, and it remains for the representatives of the various cities interested to get together and be represented by sound men and sound arguments.

Old Mother Nature may be unsympathetic in her methods, but she can do a lot of work when she gets started. One day's rain did more to take the snow away than all Lowell's horses and all Lowell's men.

How flat a municipal hearing report falls when one has just read a town meeting report with its sincerity, efficiency, and strict attention to business.

The March 10th has grown suddenly tame, but it is not safe for the lamb to come yet.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

SOUTH AMERICAN TRADE

Brooklyn Times: One of the oratorical diversions of the day is telling New England how to get South American trade. And New England is almost on the point of making up its mind to begin making preparations to start building closer connections with the republics to the south.

WANT ADS.

Haverhill Gazette: If you wish to understand the living habits of men and of women and what the modern streets are after, read the advertisements. The beginnings of homes and of new and perhaps remarkable families are to be found in the "want columns." These columns are always full of romance in the rough.

MERRIMACK PROJECT

Lawrence Telegram: Preliminary to any extensive work on the deepening of the channel of the Merrimack river it is the consensus of opinion of those who have given time and thought to the subject that the state should take the way by making some substantial appropriation for starting the project. Therefore the two meetings to be held at the state house, one tomorrow and one Friday, in relation to this subject should receive all the support possible from the people of Lawrence and other cities and towns in the valley.

THE MEXICAN WAR

Manchester Mirror: American citizens have already filed with the state department claims against Mexico amounting to three hundred million dollars. More claims will be made by American and then the English, German and French will apply for their share of damages. These claims for damages do not worry Hitters any, for would they were to be remain in power indefinitely. The money would not come out of his salary. It is the poor Mexican people, already destitute, their business enterprises wrecked, their farms devastated, that must pay the frightful cost of this senseless war.

MUNICIPAL ICE

Newport News: The attorney general of Massachusetts decides that any measure granting a city power to cut and sell ice from sources of water supply owned by it is unconstitutional. He finds that the test of constitutionality is whether the proposal is of a public nature, and the cost must be met by taxation, and that in Massachusetts the legislature can authorize.

ORGANIZING THE LOAFERS

Having failed signally to keep up the industrial strife which agitated this section of the country, some extremists are now working in the large cities of the country gathering the "unemployed" into bands and getting a great deal of sensational advertising. In New York groups of these so-called "unemployed" have gone about nightly, forcing their way into churches, and rivaling the militant suffragettes in the novelty of their publicity stunts. Their real status was displayed yesterday when city work was offered them through their leader, an I. W. W. agitator. They refused absolutely to work for 20 cents an hour shoveling snow, and declared their willingness to go to jail rather than forfeit their principles. The veneer of humanitarianism on this shallow scheme is too thin to hide the motives of the organizers. What a paradise the loafers and bums would have if the I. W. W. and kindred organizations could achieve their purpose! But they are losing ground daily, and nothing will help to wipe their perilous doctrines out sooner than activity such as that in New York with its ragged edge sentimentality and its wishy washy pretence of sincerity.

CHARTER CHANGES

The cranks in all municipalities who agitate changes in existing charters will view with dismay the action of the legislature with regard to the 25 bills or more which were introduced within the last few days in an effort to change the Boston charter. With one or two exceptions they received but scant consideration and the strongest opponent to any change was Mayor Curley, who by his stand attracted the praise of a united press and the best elements of those who work for the public interest. As time goes on and new conditions arise it is inevitable that new conditions should make certain changes desirable, but if a charter is to be effective, it must be kept out of the reach of the crank and the selfish politician who would mould it to his will. The best way to keep a charter from change, and from the rust of inefficiency, is to respect its provisions. In Lowell, there is more danger from disregard of some

A TONIC FOR THE NERVES

Nervous people who have not yet developed a disease that can be recognized and treated by the medical profession have the greatest trouble in finding relief. Irritation, headache, sleeplessness, nervous dyspepsia, all these discomforts make life miserable and are endured rather than run a doctor's bill without definite hope of recovery.

Every such sufferer should know the danger of such a condition of the nervous system. Nervous debility and even paralysis may easily result if the tone of the nerves is not restored. A tonic big fact that brings hope and relief is that the nerves can be restored by building up the blood. It cannot be too often repeated that only through the blood can nourishment and medicine reach the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make the blood rich and red and quickly restore vitality and energy to a weak nervous system. A nervous person who gives these pills a trial is almost certain to see good results and, what is more, the benefit will last long because the trouble is attacked at its root. Thin blood makes weak nerves. Building up the blood restores the nerve force.

ize a city or town to tax its inhabitants only for public purposes. In other words, a Massachusetts city or town cannot go into a general selling business.

GOOD TIMES AHEAD

Brooklyn Enterprise: There are indications of better business in many places. Here are just a few. On Feb. 14 there were over 12,000 fewer idle freight cars than there were a fortnight previous to that time in the United States and Canada. At Youngstown, O., a company is to add a plant with a daily capacity of 600 tons of steel bars. A steel company at Warren, O., has increased its capital stock from $1,250,000 to double that amount for the purpose of enlarging the plant. Andrew Carnegie has expressed the belief that not only are good days for industrial and commercial affairs coming, but the advent of them is already here. He notes that every country has its ups and downs. It is true, but the United States has a marvelous recuperative power, and arises with a bound after one of its occasional knockdowns, and often seems the better for the chastening influence of the blow and the fact that it teaches something. We'll all be happy yet.

OFFICE NO BED OF PINKS

BOSTON, March 4.—"I assumed that the office of mayor was a bed of pinks, because pinks have no thorns," said the mayor last night. "But I now realize that it is a bed of thistles and roses—without the roses."

That opinion was offered by Mayor Curley at a dinner to the Electric Motor Car club by the Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston at the American house last night.

"I have a great interest in the prosperity of the Edison company," said the mayor, "because it will need its prosperity to offset the 35 per cent. reduction in rate in the new lighting contract with the city, and I am going to try real hard to secure that reduction."

Mayor Curley commented upon his appointment of Deputy Chief Grady as fire commissioner.

"I have appointed a man who has fought fire for years, and who will introduce progressive measures into the fire department. He will fight fire intelligently and not by means of conversation and newspaper articles."

The mayor talked over the varied hours of labor in states as tending to remove industries from progressive states like Massachusetts to states where longer hours of labor were in vogue. He said that states lagging in reducing hours of labor should, by constitutional amendment, be forced to adjust their laws to those of more progressive communities. In speaking of his close attention to the city payroll, the mayor said:

"We are going to try to get the idea out of the public mind that the municipality is an orange and that anyone who is politically strong enough may have a large share."

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

At the meeting of Lowell Aerie, 223, F. O. B., held last evening, a communication was read from the Savannah, Ga. aerie, 330, asking consideration for Brother William L. Greyson, of that aerie, for the 1914 convention of the grand aerie. Brother Patrick McCann, who represented Lowell Aerie at the convention in 1913 at Baltimore and also at the Cleveland convention in 1912, spoke very favorably of Brother Greyson, whom he had met at both conventions, and the matter was referred to Past worthy President Plannagan, who will represent Lowell aerie at the next convention, which will be held in Kansas City, Mo., in August, 1914.

Seven new members were initiated at the meeting of Court 63, Knights of Equity, held last evening in its regular meeting room. The entertainment committee in charge of the St. Patrick's day celebration reported that plans were progressing rapidly and that an excellent musical and literary program would be presented.

Worms Sap Children's Health

Mothers often wonder why their children are not rugged and hardy. In a vast number of cases the trouble is—Worms.

Signs of worms are: Indigestion, variable appetite, craving for sweets, nausea, vomiting, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly, eyelids, Trade Mark itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, erect dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

GIRLS! DRAW A MOIST CLOTH THROUGH HAIR

Try This Hair Gets Thick, Glossy, Wavy and Beautiful At Once

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—That's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have a doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

gram will be carried out on that date. A special hour followed the business meeting.

PEOPLE'S CLUB LECTURE

Quite a number of answers have come in on the Lowell to Haverhill problem which is as follows: "A man starts to walk from Lowell to Haverhill at the rate of four miles an hour. When he has walked 25 minutes he is passed by an automobile that left Lowell 15 minutes after he did. The auto goes on to Haverhill, stops half an hour and meets the man on his way to Haverhill just 13 miles from Lowell. Find the distance from Lowell to Haverhill, assuming that the auto travels at a uniform rate."

This problem is very simple but several correspondents send incorrect answers.

THE CORRECT SOLUTION

The following answer by Redmond E. Welch of Newhall street is correct. Lowell, Mass., March 2, 1914.

Dear Sir: I got the answer of Lowell to Haverhill problem and explain as follows: The auto runs 2 1/2 times as fast as the man; that is, while the man walks 1 1/2 miles in 25 minutes, the auto covers the distance in 10 minutes. While the man walks 13 miles the auto runs 22 1/2 miles, but the auto delays 15 minutes at start and half an hour at Haverhill, being 45 minutes in all of delay. The auto, which goes 2 1/2 times as fast as man, travels at 10 miles an hour. In 45 minutes it will go 7 1/2 miles, that number of miles being taken off for delay. Thus, subtract 7 1/2 miles from 22 1/2 miles, which equals 15 miles. Twenty-five miles is from Lowell to Haverhill and back to 13 miles from Lowell. Thus add 13 miles to 25 miles and divide by 2, which equals 19 miles, from Lowell to Haverhill.

THE CORRECT SOLUTION

A complete solution of the problem is given in a brief but accurate statement of the problem: "The man travels 1 1/2 miles in 25 minutes, the auto in 10 minutes. Therefore the auto goes 10 miles an hour. The man walked 3 1/4 hours, the auto ran 45 minutes less or 2 1/2 hours, covering 25 miles. Thirteen miles of this was covered once, the remaining 12 miles were doubled up. Therefore 13 plus half of 12 or 6 equals 19 miles, the distance from Lowell to Haverhill."

HOTEL LICENSE CHANGES

THOMAS F. HOBAN TO HAVE LICENSE AT RICHARDSON HOTEL IN HIS OWN NAME

At a special meeting of the license board held late yesterday afternoon the holder's license at the Richardson hotel and the first class license as innholder to sell intoxicating liquors were surrendered and cancelled. Both licenses were held by Edward T. Cushing & Co.

An application for an innholder's licence at the Richardson hotel was filed at the same time by Thomas F. Hoban and granted by the board. Mr. Hoban also filed an application for a license to sell intoxicating liquors, which, however, cannot be granted by law until the bar has been closed for ten days.

At the meeting of the board yesterday Mr. Hoban and Mr. Cushing were both present with their legal advisers, Daniel J. Donahue and Albert S. Howard appeared for Mr. Hoban and Melvin Johnson represented Mr. Cushing. J. Joseph Hennessy appeared in the interests of the city.

This action by the license board was the culmination of a legal controversy entered into between Mr. Hoban and Mr. Cushing some time ago. The latter brought suit against the former for $30,000 after Mr. Hoban assumed charge of the Richardson hotel.

AT THE STATE HOUSELegislators From Middlesex and Essex Counties Plan Campaign to Secure Favorable Action on Merrimack River Project

A conference of the legislators of Middlesex and Essex counties, together with representatives of the Merrimack valley boards of trade was held at the state house in Boston today to map out a concerted line of action on the bill now before the general court for appropriation of a million dollars by the state and an equal amount by the federal government for development of the Merrimack river by the construction of an 15-ft channel as far up as Lowell.

Those in attendance from Lowell were Reps. Jewett, Amlin, Lewis, Murphy and Gilbride; Secretary Murphy of the Board of Trade, Jesse D. Crook and Charles H. McIntire.

Senator Wells of Haverhill called the meeting to order and on motion Mr. Sutherland of Lawrence was chosen chairman and John H. Murphy of Lowell secretary.

Chairman Sutherland explained the report of the Merrimack valley waterway board and its recommendations for joint action by the state and federal governments.

He said the saving in freight rates in coal alone for the Merrimack valley to Lowell would be over a million dollars a year. Railroad freights are going up, he said, and water rates are stationary. He mentioned the advantages which water-front cities enjoyed over inland cities.

Secretary Murphy said the question had passed the stage at which there could be any doubt as to the practicability of the project. He appealed for a large attendance at the hearing Friday and said that only the united action of the cities and towns of the Merrimack valley is needed to assure success.

Secretary Casey of Haverhill added other facts to show how necessary the improvement is. Other speakers were Charles H. McIntire, Jesse D. Crook of Lowell; R. J. McCartney of Lawrence; L. R. Dunn of Haverhill.

Senator Wells called a special meeting for 3 o'clock at which the Essex county delegation would outline a plan of action to promote the river project.

THE NASHUA POLICE FORCE

Supreme Court Rules That Men
Removed by Commission Are Still Police Officers of City

CONCORD, N. H., March 3.—In an opinion handed down today, the supreme court of New Hampshire decided the legal situation as to the dual police force in the city of Nashua. The legislature of 1913 passed an act to unify the police commissions of the state under which a new commission was appointed in Nashua which summarily removed from office the old police force. Members of that force, however, claimed that the commission had no authority to make such removal and the police officers continued to report for duty and brought suit against the police commission. The court held that while the act of 1913 was legally passed it did not repeal the act of 1901 under which the old police officers held their appointments "during good behavior and while competent to discharge the duties of their office."

The court held, therefore, that "the plaintiffs are still the police officers of the city of Nashua." The Nashua city commission having refused to pay the salaries of the new officers appointed by the commission they brought suit for their pay.

AGAINST EX-PRES. MELLON

JUDGE TUTTLE OVERRULED MOTION TO VACATE WARRANT FOR ARREST OF MELLON

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 3.—Judge Joseph P. Tuttle in the criminal superior court here today overruled the motion on the plea to the jurisdiction and the motion to vacate the warrant for the arrest of Charles S. Mellon. Mr. Mellon is charged with manslaughter in connection with the Westport wreck on Oct. 3, 1912. The motion was argued last week.

The effect of the decision is to leave the case on the trial list with no date for calling it before a jury. The court's decision says that records show the accused was arrested on a warrant issued by the superior court on April 15, 1913, upon an original information presented by the state attorney and without any previous arrest or inquest by a lower tribunal.

The statutes authorize an original information in the superior court against persons charged with crime, wherein an inferior court can find over for trial. Manslaughter, in such a case, warrants, termed bench warrants, have been issued by superior courts for generations. The court pointed out that it had been the practice since 1818 for courts to issue warrants on information of a state attorney or prosecuting officer, unopposed, so far as the issuing magistrate is concerned, by any oath or information tending to show probable cause that a crime has been committed by the person informed against. Such appeared to have been the practice in this case. The court said the defendant invoked section 8 of article one of the state constitution and the fourth amendment to the federal constitution in aid of his contention that the warrants were in violation of constitutional prohibitions and the brief and arguments were clear and logical; yet, the court thought the practice so long established that if any change were to be made it should be done by the court of last resort rather than by a superior court.

ASSESSORS' HEARING OFF

Ald. Brown Called Witnesses and Declared Hearing Closed
When Mayor Murphy Ruled
Out His Question

The hearing on Alderman Brown's charges against the assessors was resumed in the aldermanic chamber at city hall this forenoon.

Mayor Murphy ruled to order at 10:25 and some minor business including petitions for pole locations wire attachments, claims, etc. were properly referred.

The council voted to adopt an order stating assessments on property of John J. Gaskin in Aberdeen street.

The first witness in the assessors' hearing was Edward W. Trull, assistant clerk of the police court.

In reply to questions by Alderman Brown, witness said he knew that Albert Blazon and Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan were practicing lawyers and produced records of cases in which Mr. Blazon took part in police court in 1913.

"Did you see Mr. Blazon trying a case in police court in 1913?" asked Mr. Brown.

"I could not say that I did," replied Mr. Trull.

"Did you see Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan engaged as counsel in the police court in 1913?"

"I don't recall that I did," replied Mr. Trull.

"Were you asked to search the records of the police court to find if Mr. O'Sullivan had appeared in police court in 1913 as an attorney of record?" asked Mr. O'Sullivan.

"Yes, sir," replied Mr. Trull. "I was summoned yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Coffey."

Charles L. Stanley was the next witness.

Alderman Brown asked him if Mr. O'Sullivan was counsel for him or his boy.

"He was not my counsel nor my boy's counsel, to my knowledge," Alderman Brown questioned witness relative to a conversation he had had with Mr. O'Sullivan on Friday, Feb. 27, endeavoring to show that Mr. O'Sullivan was engaged as counsel for witness' boy, but he failed in the attempt.

Mr. Stanley said that so far as he knew Mr. J. Joseph O'Connor is counsel for his boy.

"Isn't Mr. O'Sullivan acting counsel for your boy?" asked Alderman Brown.

"As I understand it, Mr. O'Sullivan is doing my boy's business through Mr. O'Connor."

"All your conversation has been with Mr. O'Sullivan and not Mr. O'Connor?"

"Yes, sir," Frederick Gray, representing the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. was called by Alderman Brown for the purpose of showing that Messrs. Blazon and O'Sullivan had telephoned contracts with that company for telephones in their offices.

F. E. Dunbar was summoned as a witness and did not appear. Mr. Brown read a letter from Mr. Dunbar stating it was impossible for him to attend and suggested that perhaps he would admit what Mr. Brown admitted through Mr. Dunbar sought to prove.

"Will you admit that Albert Blazon was associated with Mr. James J. Kerwin in the settlement of the estate of W. H. Hayes?" asked Mr. Brown.

"I will admit anything that happened after Mr. Blazon's election in 1913, but anything before that date I would consider incompetent," said Mr. Brown, and the mayor sustained Mr. Howard.

"Didn't you vote for Mr. Blazon for assessor?" asked Mayor Murphy.

"No, I did not," replied Mr. Brown.

"And if you were more familiar with affairs, you would not insert such a question?"

The alderman then appealed from the ruling of the chair, relative to the barring of an evidence prior to Mr. Blazon's election.

The chair's ruling was sustained, the mayor not voting.

Closed the Hearing

"I will close the hearing, right here and now," said Mr. Brown, after the council voted to sustain the mayor's ruling. "It is very evident," he continued, "that your Honor, that you want to protect the defendants. I have not received any support from the municipal council despite the fact that your Honor and Commissioners Carmichael and Morse went on record in a public hearing as stating that the assessors had not done their full duty. I have a number of other witnesses that I would like to have heard, but because of your ruling it is useless to go further. I will close the hearing and reserve the right to argue on Tuesday next."

The mayor asked the respondents if they had anything to say before the hearing was declared closed and they answered in the negative.

Objects to Poles

Mrs. Sheldon objected to the location of two poles in Howard street petitioned for by the Lowell Electric Light Co. She said that the poles would interfere with the passage way to her premises and would endanger the life of a chestnut tree on the corner. On motion of Alderman Donnelly the matter was referred to the commissioners of public property and licenses and streets and highways.

This completed the meeting and the council adjourned till 3 o'clock, at which time the estimates will be taken up.

GEORGE FURTHER SCORED

Judge's Report on Conduct of Founder and Former Head of George Junior Republic

NEW YORK, March 3.—William R. George, founder and former head of the George Junior republic at Freeville, N. Y., is further scored by the findings of three informal judges in a report made public here today after they had sifted a mass of testimony regarding his conduct at the institution. Previously the state board of charities had found George's acts detrimental to the republic and he retired as its head some time ago.

The present investigation was conducted under the joint auspices of committees representing the Freeville Institution and the National association of George Junior Republics. It concerned itself with three charges, two of which the judges found were sustained. On a third—a charge that George was the father of a girl's child—a Scotch verdict of "not proven" was returned. The charges sustained were that George had made improper overtures to a girl citizen and that he went to another girl's room at night where he made an examination of her person.

The judges who passed on the charges were Joseph H. Choate, Jr., Samuel Seabury, state supreme court justice, and Miss Lillian Wald, a social worker.

KILLED BY FREIGHT CAR FALL RIVER VETS DEAD

CONCORD, N. H., March 3.—Joseph H. Labonte, employed by the Boston & Maine railroad as a brakeman on the Peterboro and Hillsboro freight, died yesterday afternoon as the result of injuries which he received earlier in the day.

While attempting to couple fast as the train was pulling out, Labonte is said to have slipped on the rail and fell beneath the wheel. Instead of the car passing over him, it caught him in the groin and pushed him along the rail for several car lengths. He was rushed to the Margaret Pillsbury hospital where the right leg was amputated at the hip and the left hand at the wrist. On his arrival at the hospital it was thought that there was slight hope of his recovery from his terrible injuries and a priest was called who administered the last rites. He died a few hours later.

Mr. Labonte was 24 years of age and had always been a resident of this city until he removed to Lowell with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Labonte, on the opening of the car shops in Billerica. He was one of the most popular young men on the system.

Mr. and Mrs. Labonte, parents of deceased, came to Lowell to arrange for the funeral. Deceased leaves several sisters and brothers.

James Noonan, owner of the saloon, said that Simon and Henry Zang, principal witness for the prosecution, entered the place together and each drank a glass of beer.

Suddenly Zang shot Simon twice in the stomach. He then left the saloon, walked to the central police station and gave himself up.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS

SUPREME COURT TO DECIDE WHETHER THEY ARE PART OF SYSTEM OF PUBLIC EDUCATION

BOSTON, March 3.—The supreme court is to decide whether industrial schools are a part of the system of public education for which towns and cities must make appropriations.

The matter came up today before Judge D. Courtney on the petition of the state committee of Newburyport for a mandamus to compel Mayor Sanford and the city council to provide a manual training school. By agreement the issue was sent to the full bench. The court has refused to make the necessary appropriation to continue the school and recently the matter was taken up to the court.

AGENT RAWLINSON TALKS

Says American Mills Can Do Little More Than Supply Home Trade
—Patterson Rubber Co.

A despatch from Washington, D. C., yesterday announced that out of the $200,000,000 worth of cotton manufactures entering international markets in 1913 only 7 per cent was bought from the United States, the producer of over two-thirds of the world's raw cotton, and that caused the department of commerce to institute a thorough investigation with a view of enlarging the foreign trade in this important branch of the American industry.

According to local mill men there is nothing new in this report, for it is a known fact that very little cotton is being exported from the states. Agent Rawlinson of the Tremont & Suffolk mill when interviewed by the writer said he regards these figures as normal, inasmuch as the United States manufactures do very little export business. He said Lowell has the bulk of foreign trade, especially in India, China, Red Sea and Central America. He said the manufacturers of this country have about all they can do to cater to their own people without exporting their merchandise.

At the Tremont & Suffolk mill, business is rushing. All departments are running full time and the new wide rooms on blankets, recently installed in the plant are being run day and night, for the orders on this special kind of goods are large and the day shift cannot keep up with them. For some time past there has been a great demand for wider goods and the result of this was that many of the manufacturers were forced to install wider looms, but they are being well repaid for the change.

The company has declared a two per cent dividend for the last half of the year 1913, which came in a close Dec. 31. This was better than the first half by a half of one per cent, inasmuch as the first dividend declared for the first six months of 1913 was 1½ per cent.

Idea is to have the balloon so ballasted that it is just hugging the ground, so that the smallest possible force will send it skyward at the same time not interfere with its absolute control. In this way the stability of the balloon is assured, for the mechanism of the car controls its ascending and descending qualities, as well as its speed and direction.
In leaving the ground there is practically no sensation. All is calm and the only feeling one gets is that the earth is gradually and peacefully sinking away. I went a distance of about 100 miles, and at no time did I sense danger. A ride in an automobile would be more strenuous in all respects than the journey I had in Zeppelin.
At the close of the lecture a large repast was served under the auspices of the ladies of the church, and Dr. Bell was extended a vote of thanks.

NEWS OF MURDERS DEMANDED BY U.S.

After Information on Reported Murder of Americans — Carranza Promises Truth in Benton Case—Paper Suppressed

WASHINGTON, March 4.—General Carranza's announcement that he had appointed a special commission to investigate the recent execution by General Villa of William S. Benton, a British subject, coupled with the declaration from Great Britain that she would not look to the United States for action as a result of the incident was generally accepted today as meaning the abandonment of the expedition of American and British representatives who were to have gone to Chihuahua to examine Benton's body. England's withdrawal at this time and Carranza's professed determination to investigate the Benton killing of his own accord with the United States, it is believed, in the position of a patient observer of developments with no present necessity for further inquiry into the Benton episode.

The decision of Carranza to ferret out the truth of the Benton execution will mean a test of his authority over Villa, according to many officials here, and will further demonstrate whether the constitutionalists intend to extend protection to foreigners and make reparation for injury done them.

Among the reasons for which there is little tendency to press the inquiry on the part of the United States and Great Britain is the fact that by this time Benton's body must be badly decomposed. Evidence of a conclusively character, as yet undisclosed, has been in the hands of officials for several days. Next steps in the situation seemed to depend on Carranza. His declaration that the United States has no right to inquire about the welfare of any foreign subjects but her own will not be accepted by the Washington government. Carranza's friends here were hopeful today that he would eventually alter his position on this point and reveal a friendly attitude toward the United States.

While pressure that had been expected from Great Britain over the Benton case has been removed the American government is much concerned over the reported murder of Gustav Bauch and Clemente Vergara, both American citizens, the one by constitutionalists and the other by Mexican Federalists. Demands for information in each case have gone forth from the state department.

APPLICATION OF MONROE DOCTRINE PARALYZED AND MOCKED.

LONDON, March 3.—The Mexican situation and Sir Edward Grey's pronouncement of the views of the British government on the death of William S. Benton, the Scotch ranchman killed at Juchitán, are the subject of much comment in today's evening newspapers.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "The temperate and restrained language in which Sir Edward Grey referred to the Mexican murder will have the approval of all Englishmen. Its moderation, however, will not disguise the depth of their feelings."

In conclusion the Pall Mall Gazette says: "Every reason of moral and international right requires of the United States that the punishment of Benton's murderers shall be undertaken with all available detail. At the present moment, nevertheless, stands doubted and Great Britain outraged. The application of the Monroe doctrine is paralyzed and mocked."

ANTI-AMERICAN PAPER SUPPRESSED BY MEXICAN GOVERNMENT

VERA CRUZ, Mex., March 4.—The government authorities today suppressed a new local paper, El Monitor, and arrested the entire staff of editors and reporters who were sent to the battle. They were charged with circulating false news calculated to excite popular animosity against the United States.

POLICE COURT CROWDED AT THE TANGO TRIAL

Two Officers Demonstrated Movements and Postures of the Defendant Dancers While the Crowd Giggled — Case Resumed This Afternoon

The spectacle of two police officers, in uniform, dancing the tango in police court tickled a good many funny bones in Judge Enright's court this forenoon. The court tangoing was resorted to in the case of Frank Hennessey and Angelina Marcotte, whom the official dance inspector, Officer John H. Clark, arrested for exaggerated tangoing at Lincoln hall on the night of February 13. The court room was crowded when Officers Clark and Swanwick took the floor and negotiated all the motions and postures which Officer Clark said the defendants engaged in at Lincoln hall. Other officers in the court room tried in vain to suppress the giggling and the guffing that went the rounds when the sturdy officers changed about the witness stand and "dipped" near the judge's chair.

The other cases on the docket, some of them quite lengthy, were disposed of before the tango case was called shortly after 12 o'clock. Court sat until 1 o'clock and adjourned until 2 p. m.

The dance is on. The noon hour had arrived when Judge Enright ordered the floor cleared for the dancers. The superintendent read complaints charging them with lewd and wanton actions at a public dance.

Lawyer O'Connor, representing Mr. Hennessey, said he wanted to file his objections to the bill of particulars. He said it was not as specific in the explanation of "lewd and wanton and lascivious" terms as it should be.

Lawyer Alford represented Miss Marcotte. Clark Flaherty of the license commission was called as the first witness. He testified that Lincoln hall is a public hall and also testified as to the license for the dance on that particular night.

Officer Clark Called. Officer John H. Clark, the official dance inspector, and arresting officer, testified.

"I saw the defendants there that night," he said, "and spoke to them. I told them to stop such actions on the floor."

"What actions?" queried the superintendent. "Indecent actions."

"Oh, no," said the court, "describe them."—and the officer went through the motions on the witness stand—presumably exaggerated tango motions.

"Did they dip?" asked the superintendent. "They did, and—"

"I object," said Mr. O'Connor. "You must describe what they did." The witness then looked at the judge and attempted to describe "les positions" as he observed them.

He said he warned them three times, that they observed the first warning, but not the other two warnings.

The court asked again as to body motions and the officer went through another series of sways, exercising quite vigorously, his shoulders and hips.

Taunted in Court

"Will you describe the motions they went through with Officer Swanwick?" asked the superintendent.

"I object," said Mr. O'Connor.

The court allowed the demonstration, and there was great giggling. Never before was such a sight witnessed in the local police court and it was impossible to suppress the laughter as the two officers, clasped in each other's arms, a la tango, glided and dipped about the witness stand. It was a sight for the gods and many a motion of theirs was missed by the court. He had asked for a demonstration and the officers were doing their "level best" to describe the naughty dance. Men and women, too, who profess to know all about the tango, declared that Officer Swanwick was the better dancer of the two. He is stouter than Officer Clark, but there is a certain gracefulness about him that seemed to take the curse off the terrible dip that makes the tango an outlaw. Men and women in back seats stood up to get a good look at the tangoers and even the defendants seemed to enjoy it. If there are any hip, shoulder, or any other movements that were not described by the officers they must belong to some other dance than the tango. The officers really seemed to enjoy the dance and were loath to stop when the court said "enough." The entertainment was well worth the long wait.

Returning his testimony, and still showing the flush of the dance, Officer Clark explained to the court that the defendants were not arrested at the hall on the night of the dance but on the following Saturday night. He told of conversations he had with the defendants when he read the warrants to them. The girl, he said, told him that she did not know Mr. Hennessey very well and that she thought their dancing at Lincoln hall on the night in question was all right. He said Mr. Hennessey told him he thought he was dancing properly, and that he would not dance any other way if he knew it.

Mr. O'Connor cross-questioned Officer Clark and devoted his best efforts in an attempt to arrive at some definite understanding as to the officer's capabilities or qualifications as a judge of dancers and dancing.

"What class of crime would the conduct of the dancers come under?" asked Mr. O'Connor. "Felony," replied the witness.

The officer had already stated felony meant a state prison offence, and he asked to have it changed to misdemeanor rather than felony.

Witness said he was familiar with the section under which the complaint was made and Mr. O'Connor asked him why he considered a warrant necessary, when it is located in the section that for "lewd, lascivious and wanton" conduct a warrant is not necessary.

The officer did not make any specific answer to this question. At 12:30 o'clock the court adjourned to 2 o'clock.

Scenes Before the Trial

The excitement in and about the Market street building this morning was the most intense of any witnessed there for many months. Not since the Blooin murder, or perhaps the days when the great textile strike was at its height, and rioters were being carted to the police station as fast as the black Maria could take them in, have so many sought admittance to the police court, where officers were on guard above and below the stairs. And what was it all about?

Answer—Two tangoers, Frank Hennessey and Angelina Marcotte, who were arrested for tangoing at Lincoln hall on the evening of February 13, were scheduled for trial and devotees of the tango chorine art, and others filled with curiosity and other kinds of curiosity, thronged the court room and advanced in a determined body on the stairway officers at the door.

It was a terrible confusion for a while. A little thing but there's no accounting for the acts and tastes of the human family.

The only thing missing was the overcrowded gallery and that is a thing of the past. There was a time when the curious were allowed to crowd the gallery, but the occupancy of it was discontinued by the order of Judge Enright, who feared that some day it might give way.

Officer Clark, the animal dance inspector, came in for more than his share of attention. He was pointed out as the man responsible for the arrest of the two tangoers and the one of the floor who is capable of deciding as to the propriety or impropriety of the dance. Not only does he pass upon the tango, but he also penetrates the mysteries of the lame duck, Argentine, chicken, flip, bunny, hug, grizzly glide and other kindred dances.

Mr. Clark is "some dancer," they say. What might pardably be remarked upon was the presence of so many men well along in years, "front row" men with scattering hairs, who seemed willing to stand till doomsday just to get a peek at the tangoers. But then it must not be forgotten that some tangoing was expected, it having been noted about that the tangoers would give an exhibition as master of evidence, to prove that they were safely within the precincts of modesty when accosted by the police officer at Lincoln hall.

It was also reported that Officer Clark might "chose a partner" just to show his side of the case and demonstrate the postures and motions that he considered objectionable.

Several cases preceded the trial of the tangoers and the crowd grew impatient. The concern manifested was almost laughable when gray-haired men begged seats of youths. The spectators evidently believed it was their privilege to talk, but they were quickly disillusioned when the court told the officers to quell the disturbance or clear the court.

LAWRENCE INDUSTRY

COMING TO LOWELL

The Northern Waste Company of Lawrence to Locate in Cawley Building at Warrenville—Board of Trade Responsible

Another industry will be added to Lowell's list shortly when the Northern Waste company of Lawrence, will transfer its plant from Blake street, Lawrence, to the Cawley building in Warrenville. The main wing of the building and an adjoining ell, which contains 30,000 square feet has been leased by the Lawrence concern for the term of seven years and the transfer will be made immediately.

The new industry was secured through the efforts of the Lowell board of trade which has spent considerable time influencing the owners to bring their plant to Lowell. The lease was signed this forenoon in the board of trade office in the Central block after the company had been persuaded to locate in the City of Spindlers. The Northern Waste company is a Massachusetts corporation, capitalized at $125,000 and will conduct a mill waste business in its new location. The corporation has contracts with several of the largest mills in New England and makes a business of converting mill waste into its various list of products. When the mill is going in full force, and it always has been reputed as one of Lawrence's busiest manufacturing plants, it employs from 50 to 75 men and the yearly payroll will reach at least $35,000. According to the lease the new company takes possession immediately and it is understood that there will be no position open for local men for some time at least as all the employees now in the down-river city will have an opportunity to come to Lowell if they desire.

The main building is three stories high and is 240 feet long by 50 feet wide. It has been vacant since the Merrimack Color Press company went out of business early last fall. The work of removing the machinery and all other equipment will be started at once and within a short time the new plant will be in full operation. The officers of the corporation include James J. White, Jr., of Boston, president, and John R. Reynolds of Boston, treasurer. The latter is also a director of the Amoskeag Manufacturing company of Manchester, N. H., one of the mills where the Northern Waste company secures its material. The plant will be in charge of Harry R. Kelly of Lawrence, the superintendent, who will probably make his residence in this city in the near future.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

At the regular meeting of the school board held last night one ballot was taken for the election of a principal for the Edison school to succeed the late Calvin Burbank. Christopher J. Hagan received two votes, John F. McLean received one vote and there were two members not voting. Mr. Lambert and Mr. Simpson. There being no choice, it was finally decided that Miss Frances Webster be appointed temporarily to serve as acting principal at the pleasure of the board.

Leave of absence for the remainder of the school year was granted to Bertha M. Rowlandson, and for two months, to Marion E. Greene.

It was voted on recommendation of the committee on school houses and hygiene that a small strip of land adjoining the Franklin school yard be leased to George F. White for $5 a year.

A letter from Henry F. Carr of the park commission, asking for a conference on the matter of raising funds for playgrounds, was read by the secretary and it was voted to invite Mr. Carr to meet with the board at the next regular meeting, March 31, at 7:30 o'clock.

Several applications for teachers' positions were read by the secretary and a letter from Daisy O. Abbott asking to be considered for a position in the industrial school was referred to the principal of that school.

Supt. Molloy read ten letters from as many applicants for the position of principal of the Edison school, but, according to the school rules, no out-of-town applicant can be considered until the local field has been thoroughly canvassed or until the fact is established that local candidates for the position are not fitted for it. The letters came from Mr. James H. Morse of Andover; Frederick A. Galvin of Malden; Henry T. Parle of Lexington; Melvin A. Arnold of Everett; Thomas L. Mea of South Framingham; W. M. Cullen of Lewiston; Mr. Andrew G. Johnson of Pawtucket, R. I.; William G. Currier of Hyannis; and Martin A. Seymour of Danvers.

Ballot for Principal

Mr. Campbell, as member of the sub-committee of the Edison school, referred to the death of the principal of that school, Calvin W. Burbank, and suggested that it would be advisable to allow the school to go along without a governing board. Mr. Thompson seconded Mr. Campbell's motion and before going so suggested that a page in the annual report of the school committee be dedicated to Mr. Burbank who had served the city so faithfully as teacher for 40 years. He offered this as a motion and it was seconded by Mr. Campbell. Then the question came on Mr. Campbell's motion for the election of a principal.

Mr. Simpson Not Ready

Mr. Simpson said that while he realized it was important that the position of principal at the Edison school should be filled as soon as possible he thought it would be best to wait a little while in order to give the members an opportunity to look the ground over more thoroughly. "Mr. Burbank," he said, "was a very efficient principal and we should endeavor to get, as his successor, a man who not had time to give the matter due consideration for Mr. Burbank has been dead but a few days. I will not be able to vote at this time."

Mr. Campbell Replies

Mr. Campbell said: "I feel that I am justified in moving for the election of a principal for the Edison school. I do not mean any offense to the memory of

Mr. Burbank or to his family. I thoroughly appreciated him as man and teacher, but had been permitted to live I think you will all agree with me that he would not have held office longer than June. In view of that fact it cannot be said that there is anything very sudden about choosing his successor. The Edison school is a very important one. The district there is a rather unusual one and I think it behooves us to take some action to select a principal."

Dr. Lambert Would Wait

While admitting that the district was a very important one, Dr. Lambert thought the committee ought to take enough time to consider the various applicants. He spoke of how badly the position had been filled by Mr. Burbank and he thought his successor should be a man of wide experience. "As far as I know," said Dr. Lambert, "there are but two local candidates for the position and not until tonight did I know there were ten out-of-town applicants for the position. If a majority of the board is satisfied with either one of the two local candidates, well and good, but I feel that I would like to look over the ground a little more thoroughly. I think we would be looking after the interests of the school by appointing the assistant principal as acting principal for the time being. I think she would be capable of taking care of any immediate necessities that might arise. We should move very cautiously in this matter. I would dislike to see the motion for the election of a principal prevail tonight."

School Without Head

Mr. Thompson said he did not think that appointing a school as the Edison should be allowed to go along without a head. As for the assistant principal, Miss Webster, he had the highest regard, but he could see no reason why the committee should not elect a principal at once. He said that local candidates had had ample time to file their applications and he felt that the two local candidates in the field were worthy of consideration.

Dr. Lambert Again

Dr. Lambert said he would not feel like supporting the two local candidates until he had done a little canvassing. "I am not saying but what I have had ample opportunity to canvass," said the doctor, "but I feel that there isn't any very great necessity of proceeding to the election of a principal at this time. I am sure that the school will not suffer under the able guidance of Miss Webster."

Man at the Helm

Mr. Campbell called Dr. Lambert's attention to the records of a meeting held August 21, at which time a principal for the Greenhough school was elected. He said that the election was made within fifteen minutes after the resignation of the former principal was read. "Why isn't this a parallel case?" I had not time then to look over the candidates," said Mr. Campbell, and he then called for the question. The motion was put and the result was as follows: Campbell and Thompson for Hagan; Caisse for McLean and Lambert and Simpson not voting.

For Temporary Principal

Mr. Campbell then moved that Mr. Hagan be appointed to serve temporarily, and at the pleasure of the board, as principal of the Edison school. Mr. Thompson seconded the motion. Mr. Campbell called attention to the fact that Mr. Hagan had served one year at the Edison school as principal, "and I found," said Mr. Campbell, "that the parents were perfectly satisfied with his administration. I repeat that somebody should be at the head of the school. It is no place for a woman."

Compromising the Board

Dr. Lambert said the board would be compromising itself by appointing instead of electing a principal. If there is not a majority to elect a principal, he said, I would not vote to appoint a man who is an active candidate. I would object very strenuously to such procedure.

Mr. Campbell said he had made the motion in good faith and that he did not think he was compromising himself in any way. He called for a ye and nay vote on his motion and it was defeated by a vote of four to one.

Miss Webster Appointed

Mr. Simpson then moved that Miss Webster be made temporary head of the Edison school. "Realizing, as I do, that there should be some head to the school," said Mr. Campbell, "I will second the motion." It was voted unanimously that Miss Webster be appointed acting principal to serve at the pleasure of the board. The question of salary was referred to the finance committee. Adjourned.

ONE YEAR AS PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Washington residents of many years to whom the ways and manners of a president have been a matter of intimate observation, have watched President Wilson with interest. The president completes one year as chief executive today.

He has been quite informal—but the most conspicuous characteristic of all in his disinclination to making public speeches. He has declined hundreds of invitations to functions in all parts of the country. He has attended but one public banquet—last night's ceremony of the National Geographic society, when Col. Goetzlowsky was presented with a gold medal by Mr. Wilson on behalf of the society. His only other speeches were made to the American Red Cross society last December and one to the Daughters of the American Revolution. His trips out of Washington have been few. While congress has been in session the president has made it a point to be at his desk continuously.

Mr. Wilson appears with a uniformed aide only at army or navy functions and the motor cycles which used to precede the president's motor car have been substituted by an automobile with secret service men who follow inconspicuously behind so that the president drives about Washington unattended but little attention.

MINOR LEAGUE OWNERS

TO MEET IN NEW YORK AND DISCUSS LOSS OF MANY PLAYERS TO FEDERAL LEAGUE

NEW YORK, March 4.—The loss of many players to the Federal league and plans to offset the invasion will be discussed here Friday by owners and representatives of minor league baseball clubs.

The special meeting has been called by the international league. Thomas M. Chivington of the American association, and John H. Farrell of Auburn, secretary of the National Association of Minor leagues, will represent more than 30 per cent. of the smaller leagues. All the clubowners of both leagues will be here by Friday and it is likely that the big organizations will get together and help the minors in any way they can.

In view of the Federal invasion of Brooklyn, the international league may reconsider its action last month and transfer the Jersey City club to Brooklyn to play at Ebbetts field when the Federals are at Washington park. Baltimore and Buffalo will also have to defend themselves against the Federal invasion while the American association must formulate plans to fight the Federals in Kansas City and Indianapolis.

Beauty Doctor Tells Secret

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitely, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To half a pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp diseases, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Genuine Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicine that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root. I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, urinary bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmor & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents, also mention The Lowell Sun.

HONOR GOETHALS UNEMPLOYED

Gold Medal Presented
Builder of Panama
Canal

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Washington paid tribute last night to Col. Geo. Washington Goethals, builder of the Panama canal. The occasion was the annual banquet of the National Geographical society, with Col. Goethals present as the guest of honor and to receive from the hand of President Wilson a special gold medal awarded him by the society in recognition of his wonderful achievement.

Secretary Bryan of the state department was toastmaster, and gathered about the banquet table with the distinguished scientists of the society were President Wilson and his cabinet, justices of the supreme court, members of the diplomatic corps, high officers of the army and navy, leaders in both houses of congress, and other notable figures in the life of the national capital.

During the evening, Jules J. Jusserand, the French ambassador and dean of the diplomatic corps, was formally notified of his election to honorary membership in the society.

The banquet hall presented a striking scene. At one end raised high above the tables the words "Atlantic-Goethals-Pacific" blazed in brilliant electric letters as all other lights were extinguished. As though it had been prearranged, this brought a roar of applause from the assembly.

Ice cream was served by waiters from miniature, dredges, carried by waiters dressed in the uniform of the United States engineer corps, and followed by sailors bearing a tiny battleship, modelled in the shape of the Panama canal ship.

The medal awarded Col. Goethals was of heavy Roman gold. It was given as an expression of appreciation by the society and the nation, of the army engineer's distinguished service, its presentation was the dual act of President Wilson's first year as chief executive of the United States.

Inscribed on the medal were the words: "This medal of the National Geographical Society is awarded to George Washington Goethals for whose ability and patriotism the world owes the construction of the Panama canal, March 28, 1914."

WANTS TO SELL BODY

NEW YORK MAN WHO CLAIMS TO HAVE SHIPPED HIS HEART FOUR INCHES OFFERS BODY FOR SALE

BOSTON, March 4.—Ellis Whitman of New York City who claims to have an abnormal heart and abnormal joints, came to Boston yesterday to try to get a New England surgeon to pay $500 for his body. Whitman asks that $500 be paid in cash to him and that upon his death the balance be given to his parents. He expects to interest physicians and surgeons in his offer and will give a demonstration to show that what he claims is true. His body and skeleton are well worth $500, he asserts; the body to be dissected and the skeleton to study and preserve.

Whitman says that five years ago he sold this same body of his to a Chicago surgeon. The surgeon died and now he is free to dispose of his remains to any doctor or surgeon who cares to make the investment.

Yesterday afternoon, before a large number of the students of the college of physicians and surgeons Whitman gave a demonstration of his ability to throw his joints out of place at will. He dislocated his shoulders and hips and allowed the students to examine him while they were out of place. After throwing his joints out he explained each dislocation and then by a twist put the bones back in their normal positions.

He then made the announcement that his body was for sale. He gave as his reason for wanting to sell it that it would be well worth studying and, besides, he needed the money.

What he termed the most dangerous and most difficult part of his demonstration was the moving of his heart four inches from its position. While a student held a stethoscope to his chest and another felt his pulse Whitman moved his heart. He said he moved it from its position four inches downward and the students who witnessed the demonstration agreed that he did this.

After this demonstration Whitman explained that his heart was out every time he did this and because of this doctors think that he cannot live to an old age. He added that he is also unable to get life insurance because of this demonstration.

In telling of his offer to sell his body he said he was 28 years of age and had been able to throw his joints out since he was a boy of 10. It is his only talent, he said. He said he would talk business. He added that an old surgeon was what he wanted, because he stood a chance to win, as the doctor might die before him.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS

NEW HAVEN, March 4.—The development of the Sunday school as "a modern business enterprise," two various problems facing Sunday school workers and the necessity of up-to-date methods and trained teachers to meet them were the chief topics of discussion at the preliminary meetings of the eleventh annual convention of the International Religious Education association, which began here today and will continue through four days.

EXCUSE ME

WASHINGTON, March 4.—President Wilson will personally address a joint session of congress Thursday, advocating the repeal of the clause in the Panama canal act which exempts American coastwise shipping from the payment of tolls.

White House officials last night arranged with the majority leaders in both houses for a joint session at 12:30 p. m. Thursday. The president has prepared a brief address in which he sets forth his opinion that congress should reserve itself and keep the violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, which he believes were violated by the Panama canal act.

The president holds that the national honor of the American people is at stake and that European nations should not be allowed to get the impression that treaties made by the American government are not adhered to in both letter and in spirit. The exemption clause, he points out, was passed on the assumption that while the Hay-Pauncefote treaty guaranteed equal treatment to all nations in the matter of tolls, the document was to be interpreted as meaning all nations except the United States.

The president believes there should be no debatable ground on treaties once made and believes the United States is in honor bound to keep the spirit of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

Originally Mr. Wilson had not intended to deliver a message on this subject. He has conferred with senators and members of the house and sentiment in favor of the repeal appeared to him to be strong. Some of the leaders, however, were of the opinion that the international phases of the situation should be emphasized in a communication from the president to congress to impress upon those who had voted for the exemption previously the necessity of changing their votes regardless of domestic questions involved.

BISHOP BOWMAN IS DEAD

"Grand Old Man of Methodism"
Was 97 Years Old and Spent
61 Years in Church Service

ORANGE, N. Y., March 4.—Bishop Thomas Bowman, formerly president of De Pauw University, died here yesterday at the home of his daughter. He was 97 years of age.

Bishop Bowman was the patriarch of Methodism in America. No other bishop in the service of that church ever reached such an advanced age. He had been affectionately known for a generation as the "grand old man of Methodism."

Sixty-one years of Dr. Bowman's life were spent in active church service, the longest record known for continuous church work. He never took a vacation. Thirty-seven years were passed in preaching and teaching and 24 as a bishop.

His career in the Methodist ministry was begun in 1833. In 1848 he founded and became president of the Dickinson Seminary at Williamsport, Pa. Later he became president of De Pauw University.

It was during this period that he served for a year as chaplain of the United States senate (1861-65) and became acquainted with Abraham Lincoln.

Bishop Bowman travelled more than 10,000 miles visiting Methodist churches throughout the world. He dedicated more than 1100 churches and attended every conference held during his active years, in Mexico, India, China and Japan.

His closing years were spent at Orange with his daughter, Mrs. B. D. Caldwell, wife of the president of the Wells Fargo Express company. Besides Mrs. Caldwell, the bishop is survived by the following children:

Mrs. George P. Smith, of Baltimore; Theodore C. Bowman of Los Angeles; Charles and Thomas Bowman, of St. Louis; F. B. Bowman of Denver; and C. R. Bowman of Tennessee.

The bishop's body will be taken to Greencastle, Ind., the seat of De Pauw University, where the funeral will be held Friday.

Three days before Lincoln was assassinated Mr. Bowman called upon the president and told him that John Wilkes Booth had been digging his (Lincoln's) footsteps. He warned the president against the danger of assassination, but Mr. Lincoln laughingly replied that he did not believe anyone wished to kill him.

REPEAL OF TOLL ACT ORE DEPOSIT IN UTAH

PHILIP WILSON THINKS CLAUSE VIOLATES HAY-PAUNCEFOTE TREATY—WILL URGE CHANGE OF VOTES

WASHINGTON, March 4.—President Wilson will personally address a joint session of congress Thursday, advocating the repeal of the clause in the Panama canal act which exempts American coastwise shipping from the payment of tolls.

White House officials last night arranged with the majority leaders in both houses for a joint session at 12:30 p. m. Thursday. ## INVESTIGATION OF THE SAN FRANCISCO AND ADJACENT MINING DISTRICTS

In continuance of its policy of assisting in the development of the resources in the metalliferous regions of the country, through scientific investigations of the geologic structure and the nature of the ore bodies, their modes of occurrence, and their probable extent, the United States Geological Survey has published a report on the "Geology and Ore Deposits of the San Francisco and Adjacent Districts, Utah"—Professional Paper 80.

Brief preliminary inspections of these districts were made by the late S. F. Emmons and by Waldemar Lindgren, but the detailed study of the region has been carried out by Geologist B. S. Butler. Mr. Butler's report, a volume of 212 pages, which embodies results of work distributed through three field seasons, presents much general information on the region and may be considered of special interest because it gives a detailed account of a part of the Great Basin hitherto only obscurely known. Mine workers, consulting engineers, and students of geology will find it of especial interest, both for its text and for the numerous clear-cut and instructive illustrations, which include halftones and line drawings of geologic structure, mineral associations, alterations and ore enrichment.

The report is not so conspicuous for new or radical ideas as for the presentation of definite evidence, throwing new light on existing theories. Its comparisons of the districts discussed with other districts are also especially helpful. Another noteworthy feature is the description of several minerals which are now or unusual or occur in unusual associations but which are of considerable economic importance in the San Francisco and adjacent districts. These minerals, including waverite, anhydrite, plumbogereite and illustrite, are adequately described and illustrated, and their origin and significance are discussed.

The section of the report discussing ore deposits is of especial value in showing the relations of the different types of ore to one another and in pointing out the limitations, both in extent and value, of each type. The deposits include copper ores as replacement veins in limestone and as contact metamorphic deposits in limestone, also lead-silver ores, accompanied by a little zinc and copper as replacements of certain limestone beds along fissures and as replacement veins in effusive lavas. Transition types between the contact metamorphic and silver-lead deposits in limestone are of especial interest. The discussion of ore genesis supplies a missing link in the usual chain of evidence by showing the genetic connection between typical monomineralic and ore bodies through transition types of apatite and permatite character. The conditions influencing alteration of the ores in the different rocks are next considered, with explanations of chemical processes and changes in metal contents, and the discussion is illustrated by some very instructive half-tones showing minerals in process of alteration. The section closes with some suggestions as to prospecting and a well balanced consideration of the future of the region, encouraging prospecting and development in some places and discouraging it in others.

Another portion of the report is devoted to mine descriptions accompanied by plans and sections which render them especially valuable for study by all interested in the scheme of ore deposits.

A copy of the report may be obtained free on application to the Director of the Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

RANTOUL DIVORCE CASE

RUMRILL ON STAND ADMITS KISSING MRS. RANTOUL—DECISION EXPECTED TODAY

BOSTON, March 4.—The Rantoul divorce case will go to the court for decision some time today.

The defence rested its case shortly after the opening of the afternoon session, following a day of dramatic situations, in which Mrs. Lois Burnett Rantoul, the libellant, and Chester Chapin Rumrill, her "heaven-sent lover," played the leading roles.

Within a few moments after Chester Chapin Rumrill had testified on the stand that there had been more than a friendship between Mrs. Rantoul and himself, that he had kissed her and that she had kissed him, Mrs. Lois Burnett Rantoul, who could not stand the ordeal of being in the courtroom during his testimony was called to the stand only more to answer questions in rebuttal.

Attorneys of long experience in the courts said yesterday that never before in the history of Massachusetts divorce courts has there been such a dramatic situation as was enacted at the East Cambridge court yesterday.

TWO CARS COLLIDED
Passenger Coach Became Detached and Cashed into a Freight Car at Middlesex Street

A small portion of the platform at the B. & M. station on Middlesex street was badly damaged early last evening when the rear coach on a passenger train which was backing into the Thorndike street yard became detached and rolled down the track, crashing into a freight train and tipping off the end of the platform. There were no passengers in the train at the time and no one was injured. Within ten minutes after the accident happened a working crew was on the scene and the car was removed from the main track in a short time.

NOTED PRIEST DIED TODAY

REV. JOSEPH LEFEBVRE, O. M. I.

Rev. Joseph Lefebvre, O. M. I., Former Rector of St. Joseph's Church, Dead—Sketch of His Labors in the Order

Rev. Joseph Lefebvre, O. M. I., the dean of the Oblate fathers of this city, a former provincial of the order, and former pastor of St. Joseph's parish, man received on Feb. 25 during the supper hour. Fr. Lefebvre, who would have been 79 years old on April 13, was one of the best known priests of this city, and his demise will be a keen blow to his many friends in the various cities he has been stationed since his ordination.

Rev. Joseph Lefebvre, O. M. I., was born at St. Constant, Que., from the marriage of Joseph Nadar Lefebvre and Marie Tremblay, both natives of Normandy, France. He studied in his home village and later entered the Montreal seminary, where he graduated with honors in 1854, at which time he entered the Oblate order. He made his novitiate in Montreal and studied theology at the Ottawa university, where he was ordained to the priesthood in 1855. He remained at the university a number of years as professor of theology and later was transferred to St. Sauveur, Que., where he helped build the parish, remaining there until 1871.

In 1871 the distinguished clergyman came to Lowell as assistant pastor of St. Joseph's parish, making his home at the rectory of the Immaculate Conception church. Two years later he was appointed pastor of the parish, and at the close of his term of office Fr. Lefebvre was appointed pastor of St. Pierre's parish, Montreal, where he was stationed 25 years.

In 1897 he was appointed special delegate of the Oblate Order to the general chapter of the order which was held in Rome and at that time, and was granted an audience by His Holiness Leo XIII. In 1893 he was again a delegate to the general chapter held in Paris, France. In 1893 he was elected provincial of the order for Canada and the United States and served as such in a very efficient manner for two consecutive terms, or six years, being stationed in Lowell. In 1900 he was called to Europe by the provincial general on important business, and during his sojourn abroad he attended the Paris exposition. Four years later he made another voyage across the ocean and visited His Holiness Pope Pius X. In 1904 he was appointed pastor of St. Joseph's parish and at that time he celebrated his golden jubilee. In 1907 he was succeeded by the late Rev. Joseph Campbell, O. M. I.

At the close of his pastorate at St. Joseph's, Fr. Lefebvre was appointed chaplain of the French-American orphanage by His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell and held the position until the time of his death. On Wednesday morning, Feb. 25, Fr. Lefebvre celebrated mass in the private chapel of the rectory and all day he seemed in good health, although his advanced age began to show. In the evening he was seized with a paralytic shock and despite the best efforts of medical skill he passed away this morning.

Rev. J. H. Racette, O. M. I., Ph. D., pastor of St. Joseph's parish, announced this noon that the funeral of the late Rev. Joseph Lefebvre, O. M. I., who at the time of his death was assistant provincial of the Oblate order, will be held Friday morning. The celebrant of the mass of requiem has not as yet been chosen, and this mat-

At five o'clock this afternoon the body of the late priest will be removed to the lower part of St. Jean Baptiste church, where it will lie in state until Friday morning. The church will be open until 10 o'clock this evening and the parishioners will be given an opportunity to cast a last glance on one they loved and respected. The remains will remain in state at the church until Friday morning, at which time they will be conveyed to St. Joseph's church in Lee street, where at 9 o'clock the office for the dead will be chanted. A solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated at 10 o'clock and burial will take place in the Oblate cemetery in Tewksbury.

A sister of deceased, Mrs. Boule of St. Constant, Que., as well as one of his nieces, Miss Eveline Lefebvre from the same place, arrived in Lowell this morning and they will remain here until after the funeral.

LARGE SUMS IN REBATES

Charges by Lamar and Green—Former Presents Alleged Agreement Between Steel Corps.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—In response to the senate resolution requesting the inter-state commerce commission to inquire into the desirability of investigating charges by David Lamar and William H. Green that the United States Steel corporation had received during the last six years, immense sums in freight rebates, the commission probably will report that the necessity for the investigation does not exist.

At the conclusion of the hearing today Lamar submitted what purported to be an agreement between the Federal Steel Co. and the Carnegie Steel Co. by which the former was to pay the latter 10 cents a ton from the published rate for carrying ore from the Minnesota mines to Lake Superior ports.

The agreement, it was said, was made before the organization of the steel corporation and never became effective. Lamar declared that this was the basis of his charge of a rebate conspiracy and that he had no other documents to present. Certified copies of entries on the books of the steel corporation showing rebates which were promulgated at yesterday's hearings were not produced. "I feel," said Lamar, "that I have performed all the duty on me in the matter."

C. A. Severance, counsel for the steel corporation, declined to cross-examine Lamar or Green, saying their statements were not evidential. Other witnesses whom Lamar asked to be subpoenaed probably will not be summoned.

The commission recalled that a new basis for class rates on the Boston & Maine had been prepared as a result of the investigation by various state commissions and interstate commerce commissioner Prouty and said the new local tariffs were in the hands of the printer. "It is evident," says the commission, "that any intelligent and consistent treatment of the questions presented by the petition must rest upon this basis as a cornerstone, and that neither joint rates nor commodity tariffs can be properly considered before the completion of the fundamental basis."

COTTON OPPORTUNITIES

It has just been ascertained by the government department of commerce that this country is lagging behind the rest of the world in the proportionate relation of its international cotton trade with its opportunities for controlling the markets of all nations. Reports recently compiled show that of the $200,000,000 worth of cotton manufactures entering international markets in 1913, only 7 per cent. was bought from the United States—though this country produces over two-thirds of the world's supply of raw cotton. At the same time, during 1913, cotton manufactures to the amount of $25,500,000 were imported into the United States.

Here are figures that will give food for thought to the cotton mills of Lowell and the rest of the country. They point to a condition which should not exist and which was entirely preventable. If not remedied, in what ever branch of industry we may or may not excel, there can be no doubt that our manufacturers have always felt that American textile superiority was unchallenged. And yet, though American grows two-thirds of the world's cotton supply, only 7 per cent. of the finished product of American manufacturers is bought in the foreign market. In other words, all the nations of the earth may come here, buy our raw cotton, and after having brought it to their manufacturing centers, may weave it and beat us in international competition. It is nothing short of a national disgrace that other countries should be able to bring their cotton products even into our own markets, and sell them to the tune of $25,500,000 in one year.

These acts of keeping with the progressive spirit of this times may be tempted to attribute this reprehensible condition to the revised tariff, but the claim cannot be substantiated. The pitiful showing of American manufacturers of the world is not due to it. It is due to new conditions. In fact, taking the entire field of import and export as a whole, the year 1913 has more to show in our favor than the years immediately preceding. In the report of the secretary of commerce for 1913, he says: "Our foreign commerce has grown by leaps and bounds until during the fiscal year, ended June 30, 1913, it reached the great total of $4,279,000,000 in value." He also says more specifically in reference to the one item of finished cotton: "Our exports of crude food-stuffs and of crude materials of other kinds have fallen to a minor place, and the largest element in the greatest aggregate of foreign sales ever made is that of manufactured goods, and among these manufactured goods the item of fully finished manufactures is the largest." It will, therefore, be seen that the comparative failure of the United States to keep supremacy in the cotton industry, was less a failure under the new tariff than under the old—though improvement is almost negligible when we remember the insignificant 7 per cent. of cotton goods made in this country which represents American enterprise and industry before the progressive nations of the world.

The cause of America's failure to grasp the opportunity of leading all other nations of the earth in the extent of its cotton industry is mainly twofold—the old principle of high protection, and resulting failure to push its finished products scientifically and consistently. Notwithstanding the practical monopoly on raw cotton, the superiority of workmanship, the sufficiency of labor and all the other elements that counted for efficiency, the American manufacturer built around himself and his business a tariff wall that kept his own little market secure and shut him out from the markets of Europe, Asia, Africa and the Orient. He blindly clung to keeping the cotton industry to himself, and now the world tells him to keep his finished product to himself. How else may we understand the paltry 7 per cent.?

With regard to the second reason for America's failure to make the most of her unrivaled opportunity, the government in the past made little effort to extend our foreign markets and the American manufacturer made less. Only $60,000 or so was appropriated annually for the purpose of investigating foreign conditions, paying agents, etc. Most of the important commercial duties were left to the members of the consular service who had neither the time nor the training to get results. At last the government is aroused, and the department of commerce requested this year that $100,000 be appropriated for the purpose of extending American trade in South America, and a like sum for the rest of the world. The government also aims to increase its commercial agents, and in the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce there will be an increase of $1 employees, including many special investigators who are experts in every sense of the word.

The department of commerce is also instituting a thorough examination into the causes for the poor showing of the American cotton industry with the intention of "enlarging the foreign trade in this important branch of American industry." If under the new tariff all our mills have run full time, while we sold only 7 per cent. of the cotton of the world in foreign markets, what may we not hope for when we sell 60 or 70 per cent.—as we should, considering the fact that we control the principal supply of raw material, and that our product has no superior? The lowering of the tariff wall will throw us into active competition with the rest of the world, and with the proper spirit of optimistic co-operation from the manufacturers, the government should give an impetus to the cotton industry which will give Lowell and our other "mill" cities a new birth of industrial activity.

CLUBS AND HOME

At a business meeting of the most progressive women's club, a day or two ago there were several matters of importance that the session dragged into the noon hour, and the meeting was adjourned because, as a newspaper report says, "the members were going home to prepare the dinner for their families." In this matter of fact phrase is the essence of the ideal club. The wit, the after-dinner speaker, the cartoonist, and the flip-pant paragraph have for many years found a mine of material in the extreme type of women's clubs where the home and everything feminine were supposed to be neglected and where modern feminine independence of thought and action reigned supreme. So persistent is the exploitation of such a mythical club, that gradually it became spoken of as a reality—though it is doubtful if one such could be found outside the sphere of the most extreme feminism. Indeed, fairness would claim that when a home-neglecting club is discovered, the members are usually masculine.

Clubs of either men or women may exert an elevating and enabling influence on their members, but they are secondary in interest to the home, which is the center of family life and the mainstay of the nation, and the men or women who neglect the home for the club are killing the best that is in them. By throwing down prejudice, establishing common meeting grounds, affording their members the opportunity to discuss weighty matters of national and international importance, establishing good fellowship and in many other ways clubs instruct and educate, but they are secondary to the home with its paramount family claims. The problems of the club and the home are best solved by those who can leave an important discussion of pertinent affairs "to prepare the dinner for their families."

ORGANIZING THE LOAFERS

Having failed signally to keep up the industrial strife which agitated this section of the country, some extremists are now working in the large cities of the country, gathering the "unemployed" into bands and petting a great deal of sensational advertising. In New York groups of these so-called "unemployed" have gone about nightly, forcing their way into churches, and rivaling the militant suffragettes in the novelty of their publicity stunts. Their real status was displayed yesterday when city work was offered them through their leader, an I. W. W. agitator. They refused absolutely to work for 20 cents an hour shoveling snow, and declared their willingness to go to jail rather than forfeit their principles. The vendor of humanitarianism on this shallow scheme is too thin to hide the motives of the organizers. What a paradise the loafers and bums would have if the I. W. W. and kindred organizations could achieve their purpose! But they are losing ground daily, and nothing will help to wipe their pernicious doctrines out sooner than activity such as that in New York with its raised edge sentimentality and its wishy washy pretense of sincerity.

CHARTER CHANGES

The cranks in all municipalities who agitate changes in existing charters will view with dismay the action of the legislature with regard to the 25 bills or more which were introduced within the last few days in an effort to change the Boston charter. With one or two exceptions they received scant consideration and the strongest opponent to any change was Mayor Curley, who by his stand attracted the praise of a united press and the best elements of those who work for the public interest. As time goes on and new conditions arise it is inevitable that new conditions should make certain changes desirable, but if a charter is to be effective, it must be kept out of the reach of the crank and the selfish politician who would modify it to his will. The best way to keep a charter from change, and from the rust of inefficiency, is to respect its provisions. In Lowell, there is more danger from disregard of some of its provisions than from those who would amend it in any important particular.

The expected has happened in the declaration of Sir Edward Grey that if England is not satisfied with the protection afforded English subjects in Mexico, by this country, it will reserve the right to assume responsibility for such protection. Such an announcement will be an incentive for the government to take positive action, and it may also serve as a warning to all factions in Mexico. If intervention must come, the people of this country will support it, but they are certainly not in favor of it as a whole.

The hearing on the navigation of the Merrimack to be given at the state house on Friday before the rivers and harbors committee involves the commercial interests of the whole Merrimack valley, and it is for the representatives of the various cities interested to get together and be represented by sound and sound arguments.

Old Mother Nature may be unsympathetic in her methods, but she can't do a lot of work when she gets started. The day's rain did more to take the snow away than all Lowell's horses and all Lowell's men.

How flat a municipal hearing report falls when one just reads a town meeting report on its sincerity, efficiency, and strict attention to business. The March lion has grown so lately that it is not safe for the lamb to come yet.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

SOUTH AMERICAN TRADE
Brooklyn Times: One of the oratorical obligations of the day is telling New England how to get South American trade. And New England is almost on the point of making up its mind to begin making preparations to ship building long connections with the public to the south.

MERRIMACK PROJECT

Lawrence Telegram: The many to any extensive work in the opening of the channel of the Merrimack river it is the consensus of opinion of those who have given time and thought to the subject that the state should lead the way by making some substantial appropriation for starting the project. Therefore the two meetings to be held at the state house, one tomorrow and one Friday, in relation to this subject should receive all the support possible from the people of Lawrence and other cities and towns in the valley.

THE MEXICAN WAR

Manchester Mirror: American citizens have already filed with the state department "claims" against Mexico amounting to three hundred million dollars. More claims will be made by American and then the English, German and French will apply for their share of damages. These claims for damages do not worry Mexico and nor would they were he to remain in power indefinitely. The money would not come from the state treasury, but from the pockets of the people already in debt. The business enterprises wrecked, the farms devastated, that must pay the frightful cost of this senseless war.

MUNICIPAL ICE

Newport News: The attorney general of Massachusetts decided that no measure granting a city power to cut and sell ice from sources of water supply owned by it is unconstitutional. He holds that the test of constitutionality is whether the proposed ice supply is a public nature, and that such business is to be carried on the cost must be met by taxation, and that in Massachusetts the legislature can authorize

A TONIC FOR THE NERVES

Nervous people who have not yet developed a disease that can be recognized and treated by the medical profession, have the greatest trouble in finding relief. Irritation, headache, sleeplessness, nervous dyspepsia, all these discomforts make life miserable but are endured rather than run a doctor's bill without definite hope of recovery. Every acute sufferer should know the danger of such a condition of the nervous system. Nervous debility and even paralysis may easily result if the tone of the nerves is not restored. The one big fact that brings hope and relief is that the nerves can be restored by building up the blood. It is through the blood that the nerve medicine reaches the nerve. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make the blood rich and red and quickly restore vitality and energy to a weak nervous system. A nervous person who gives these pills a trial is almost certain to see good results, and what is more, the benefits are lasting because the trouble is attacked at its root. Thin blood makes weak nerves. Building up the blood restores the nerve force.

GOOD NEWS AHEAD

Brooklyn Enterprise: There are indications of better business in many places. Here are just a few. On Feb. 14 there were over 12,000 fewer idle freight cars than there were a fortnight previous to that time in the United States and Canada. At Youngstown, O., a company in a plant with a daily capacity of 600 tons of steel bars, A. Steel company, at Youngstown, O., has increased its capital stock from $1,250,000 to $2,000,000. Dr. Andrew Carnegie has expressed the belief that not only are good days for industrial and commercial affairs coming, but the advance guard of them is already here. He says that every country has its ups and downs, but that the United States has a marvelous recuperative power, and arises with a bound after one of its occasional knockdowns, and often gains the better for the chastening influence of the blow and the fact that it teaches something. We'll all be happy yet.

OFFICE NO BED OF PINKS

CURLEY AT BANQUET TELLS OF DUTIES—EDISON CO. GIVEN HALF OF PROPOSED RATE CUT

BOSTON, March 4.—"I assumed that the office of mayor was a bed of pinks, because pinks have no thorns," said Mayor Curley last night. "But I now realize that it is a bed of thistles and roses—without the roses." That opinion was offered by Mayor Curley at a dinner to the Electric Motor Car club by the Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston at the American house last night. "I have a great interest in the prosperity of the Edison company," said the mayor, "because it will need its property to offset the 25 per cent. reduction in rate in the new lighting contract with the city, and I am going to try real hard to secure that reduction."

Mayor Curley commented upon his appointment of Deputy Chief Grady as fire commissioner. "I have appointed a man who has fought fire for years, and who will introduce progressive measures into the fire department. He will fight fires intelligently and not by means of conversation and newspaper articles." The mayor talked of the varied hours of his duties as tending to remove industries from progressive states like Massachusetts to states where longer hours of labor were in vogue. He said that states lagging in reducing hours of labor should, by constitutional amendment, be forced to adjust their laws to those of more progressive communities. In speaking of his close attention to the city payroll, the mayor said: "We are going to try to get the idea out of the public mind that the municipality is an orange and that anyone who is politically strong enough may have a large share."

Brother Patrick McCann, who represented Lowell at the convention in 1913 at Baltimore and also at the Cleveland convention in 1912, spoke very favorably of Brother Greyson, whom he had met at both conventions, and the matter was referred to Paul W. W. President Flanagan, who will convey the communication to the next convention, which will be held in Kansas City, Mo., in August, 1914.

AUTO PROBLEM SOLVED

REDMOND, FAVELGH AND "J. F. S."

SEND IN ACCURATE ANSWERS TO "PUZZLE"

Quite a number of answers have come in on the Lowell, to Haverhill problem which is as follows: "A man starts to walk from Lowell to Haverhill at the rate of four miles an hour. When he has walked 25 minutes he is passed by an automobile that left Lowell 15 minutes after he did. The auto goes on to Haverhill, stops half an hour and meets the man on his way to Haverhill just 13 miles from Lowell. Find the distance from Lowell to Haverhill assuming that the auto travels at a uniform rate."

This problem is very simple but several correspondents send incorrect answers. Dear Sir: Following is my solution of the problem: If a man walks 4 miles an hour he will walk one mile in 15 minutes. If the total miles he walks is 13 the time consumed would be 13x15 equals 195 minutes.

If the auto passes the man when he has walked 25 minutes the distance walked would be 1 2/3 miles, making the time for the auto 10 minutes for 1 2/3 miles.

If the auto has traveled 1 2/3 miles in ten minutes in one minute it will travel 1 1/2 miles. The time required for the man to walk 13 miles is 195 minutes; the auto naturally consumed the same time less the 30 minutes stop, to go from Lowell to Haverhill and back 13 miles from Lowell which is 13x30 equals 390 mins. If the auto travels 1 1/2 miles a min. 390 mins 1 1/2 miles equals 27 1/2 miles and of course there still remains 13 miles to travel. Therefore the distance back and forth is 27 1/2 plus 13 equals 40 1/2. So the distance from Lowell to Haverhill is 1 1/2 of 40 1/2 miles—20 1/4 miles.

Respectfully, C. A. Sanderson, 252 Fayette St.

Mr. George G. Sproulins of 408 Suffolk street sends us a solution which is practically the same as the preceding and gets for answer 20 1/2 miles, which is in correct.

The Correct Solution

The following answer by Redmond E. Welch of Newhall street is correct.

Lowell, Mass., March 3, 1914.

Dear Sir: I got the answer of Lowell to Haverhill problem and explain as follows: The auto runs 2 1/2 miles as fast as the man; that is, while the man walks 1 2/3 miles in 25 minutes, the auto covers 2 1/2 miles in 10 minutes. While the man walks 13 miles the auto runs 32 1/2 miles, but the auto delays 15 minutes at start and half an hour at Haverhill, being 45 minutes in all for delay. The auto, which goes 2 1/2 times as fast as man, travels at 10 miles an hour. In 45 minutes it will go 7 1/2 miles, that number of miles being taken off for delay. Thus, subtract 7 1/2 miles from 32 1/2 miles, which equals 25 miles. Twenty-five miles is from Lowell to Haverhill and back to 13 miles from Lowell. Thus add 13 miles to 25 miles and divide by 2, which equals 19 miles, from Lowell to Haverhill.

Respectfully, Redmond E. Welch, 61 Newhall street, Lowell.

A Complete Solution

A correspondent signing "J. F. S." sends in a brief but accurate statement of the problem in thus: The man travels 1 2/3 miles in 25 minutes, the auto in 10 minutes. Therefore the auto goes 10 miles an hour. The man walks 1 1/2 miles in 25 minutes, covering 25 miles. Thirteen miles of this was covered once, the remaining 12 miles were doubled upon. Therefore 13 plus half of 12 or 6 equals 19 miles, the distance from Lowell to Haverhill.

HOTEL LICENSE CHANGES

THOMAS F. HOHAN TO HAVE LICENSE AT RICHARDSON HOTEL IN HIS OWN NAME

At a special meeting of the license board held last evening, afternoon the inholder's license at the Richardson hotel and the first class license as inholder to sell intoxicating liquors were surrendered and cancelled. Both licenses were held by Edward T. Cushing & Co. An application for an inholder's licence at the Richardson hotel was filed at the same time by Thomas F. Hoham and granted by the board. Mr. Hoham also filed an application for a license to sell intoxicating liquors, which, however, cannot be granted by law until the bar has been closed for ten days.

At the meeting of the board yesterday Mr. Hoham and Mr. Cushing were both present with their legal advisers, Daniel J. Donohue and Albert S. Howard, and appeared before the board. Mr. Joseph Hennessy appeared in the interests of the city.

This action by the license board was the culmination of a legal controversy entered into between Mr. Hoham and Mr. Cushing some time ago. The latter brought suit against the former for $25,000 after Mr. Hoham assumed charge of the Richardson hotel.

LIQUOR LICENSE FEES

WERE FIXED BY LICENSE BOARD

SAME AS LAST YEAR—OTHER BUSINESS

At the regular weekly meeting of the license board last night it was voted to fix the fees for licenses at the same figures for next year that were set last year. The licenses and amounts paid for same are as follows: First class inholder, $1500; second class inholder, $1000; third class inholder, $500; specialty license, $200.

The commission also voted the following minor licenses: In Association hall, $100; William H. Wood, permission to sell ice cream, confectionery, soda water and fruit on the Lord's day, $25; Sistrak Torocman at 245 Middlesex street, Harry J. Lapin at 37 Chapel street, Hawkes and peddler, P. Francis Higgins of 159 Cross street, Alphonse Lantagie of 141 Allen street, Anthony Caza of 53 Liberty avenue, express, Bernos Lathen of 4 in the rear of 20 South street and Geo. H. Hovey of 27 Middlesex street; common victualler, Waldor Lundy, Inc., 245 Centre street. The license of Alphonse Lantagie of 215 Middlesex street, to sell ice cream, confectionery, soda water and fruit on the Lord's day, was cancelled.

After transacting considerable business of a routine nature, the board adjourned.

MASS. LEGISLATUREGov. Walsh Recommends That Corporate Franchise Taxes Paid to State be Retained and Not Distributed to Cities

BOSTON, March 3.—Gov. Walsh today sent a special message to the legislature in which he advocated a change in the distributing of corporate franchise taxes paid by certain classes of corporations. He recommended that "the corporate franchise taxes paid into the treasury of the commonwealth by railroad, telephone and telegraph companies and trust companies be retained by the commonwealth instead of being distributed to cities and towns in proportion to the residence of shareholders and that the franchise taxes on gas and electric light companies be distributed to the cities and towns where the stockholders reside."

The first recommendation, the governor believes, would result in a very material addition to the revenue of the commonwealth. The second, he said, would provide merely a different method of distributing the taxes of gas and electric light corporations to cities and towns.

SUNSHINE BRINGS RELIEF

Food Supplies and Milk Arrive in
New York With Resumption of Train Service—Heavy Damage

NEW YORK, March 3.—Fresh food supplies and milk from delayed trains arrived in New York today, bringing with them the first signs of relief from the snow drifts. The snow drifts, which had been piled up in the wake of the great storm of Sunday and Monday, were being cleared away by the city's snowplows. The snow drifts were reported to be about two feet deep in some places. At midnight it was 24 degrees below zero. The weather was the prediction for tonight.

Of the eight barges drift and in the off-Fra Island, five were reported picked up and in tow for New York today.

Railroad schedules were visibly improved today yet still far from normal. The Lakewood and Atlantic City express of the Jersey Central which left New York Sunday afternoon with 100 passengers aboard and became stalled at Paterson's Cut, about two miles from New York, N. J., was released today. The line between New York and Atlantic City was still blocked and the train started back toward Jersey City.

Take Invalids From Trains

Among the passengers taken from the train were a number of invalid New Yorkers and Brooklynites who were on their way to New Jersey to seek recuperation.

The Jersey Central reported its lines to Allentown open. No attempt was made this forenoon to run trains beyond that point. A half dozen wrecked cars were sent out over the road to clear the snow from the tracks.

The New Haven road reported all its trains running on time. This railroad was the least affected by the blizzard.

PRICES WERE DEPRESSED

AT OPENING TODAY—TRADING
LIGHT OWING TO WIRE INTER-
RUPTIONS—CLOSED STEADY

NEW YORK, March 3.—Prices were depressed at the opening of the stock market today. Trading was light because of interrupted wire lines and fluctuations were not pronounced. New Haven declined severely, reaching 111-1/2, a decline of one point from the high price of yesterday. There was further strengthening and activity among the express stocks, Adams Express rose five points and Wells Fargo four points.

Trading during the morning was on a basis as small as yesterday. The market still felt the effect of the stock market's depression on account of the continued interruption of wire communication. There was no large quantity of stocks pressing for sale and although the early movement was downward, the small decline was followed by a recovery and by noon prices were restored to about a level with yesterday's close. London selling was largely responsible for the early depression.

Progress upward in the afternoon was confined chiefly to the industrials for which there was a broader inquiry. Texas Co. rose nearly two points. Rubber was more active on a rising scale. Renewed liquidation of New Haven followed the appearance of its poor statement for January. The price fell to 111-1/2, equaling the low record in the company's history made last December.

The usual market leaders held steady and in some cases further slight gains were made.

The market closed steady. Real estate was quiet. The list was not large but business operations were not aggressively conducted and no serious account stopped the decline of New Haven.

COTTON SPOT

Cotton spot closed quiet. Middling uplands 13.00, middling Gulf 13.25. No sales.

SECOND READING OF HOME RULE BILL

LONDON, March 3.—The second reading of the Home Rule bill is to be debated next Monday in the house of commons, according to an announcement this afternoon by Premier Asquith.

10 HOUR LAW FOR WOMEN

Atty. Gen. Boynton and His Predecessor, Jas. M. Swift at Washington to Argue on Case

BOSTON, March 3.—Attorney-General Thomas J. Boynton and his immediate predecessor, James M. Swift, left for Washington today to argue on the constitutionality of the ten-hour labor law for women and particularly on the provision requiring notices to be posted of such hours of labor. The supreme court of Massachusetts had upheld the constitutionality of the act, but an appeal was taken on the ground that the notice requirement is unreasonable and arbitrary and therefore unconstitutional.

The case goes up to the highest court on an appeal by Richard G. Riley, a foreman in the Davol mill at Fall River, who was convicted in 1910 of allowing a woman to work in the spinning room at a time other than indicated on the posted notices of hours of labor.

The ten hour law has been sustained with reference to women in Ohio and Oregon, but the question of posting notices has never been passed upon.

RUTHNIANS CONDEMNED

The principal prisoner, Fr. Alexius, a Russian monk, from Mount Athos, was condemned to four and one-half years imprisonment. The other 31 convicts were condemned to terms ranging from six months and two and a half years in prison and all in addition were fined small sums.

Twenty-three others were acquitted.

INDICT JOHN LOVE ELLIOTT

Former New Yorker Must Stand Trial in England on Charges Made by His Daughter

LEWES, Eng., March 3.—A true bill against John Love Elliott, formerly of New York, was returned yesterday by the grand jury at the Sussex assizes. The exact nature of the charge was not made public, but it was generally understood to be in connection with communications to the police concerning stories told by Elliott's two daughters, with whom he had lived at Hammerwood House, Sussex, since March, 1913. The allegations are said to be of the most serious and flagrant character.

Fred C. Church had the insurance on the house in which the fire occurred on Trilby street yesterday. The same company had the insurance on the furniture.

THE TOWN OF BILLERICA

MAY SELL THE TOWN FARM BUILDING AND ERECT NEW BUILDING ELSEWHERE

A question that is causing considerable discussion among the residents of the town of Billerica at the present time is whether or not it would be advisable to sell the present town farm and erect a new building in another section of the town or to take care of its paupers. The state inspector of buildings has recently made an inspection of the property and ordered several changes to be made at once and many of the residents believe that it would be better to sell the property and build a modern house than to expend the money that it would take to make the necessary repairs.

The Billerica town farm is located on Billerica avenue near the Billerica town square and according to the town reports for the past few years has not been a paying proposition. The buildings were erected many years ago and there is no sewerage in that part of the town water does not extend far from the center of the town as the farm is located. The building inspector says that as it is as much of a public building as the town hall it must be remodeled and changed made to make it more comfortable for the inmates.

Just how much the cost of repairing the buildings would be is not known but as the property is located within a short distance of the Boston & Maine repair shops it is understood that several real estate agents have expressed a desire to take hold of it and sell it. An article relative to this matter will appear in the warrant at the meeting this month and some action will be taken then.

At an adjourned meeting of the municipal council held last Wednesday afternoon, the departmental estimates for the year as agreed upon in private conference were adopted by a vote of four to one. Commissioner Brown speaking against their adoption. The estimates are based on a tax limit of $14.20 per $1000 of valuation, an increase of $2.20 over the tax limit of last year.

In submitting its budget for the year the municipal council calls attention to the fact that last year's government had $1,645,825.00 in revenue with loans to plug up in some of the departments. This year's government, it claims, will have to run the department with this amount from revenue alone, while having in addition, the law governing "Dependent Mothers," the increase of firemen and other items which they claim would raise the estimate to $1,708,970.00.

The report states that the committee finds it utterly impossible to run the city on the old, so-called, limit.

The budget calls for $1,645,825.00 for the running expenses of the city departments and $500,000.00 for the fixed charges, a total of $2,145,825.00 for the year 1914.

It would appear from the comparative figures that $500,000.00 has been allowed for streets this year, but that is not so. Last year's street appropriation included $100,000.00 for lighting and this year's budget does not include any street lighting appropriation.

ASSAULT CASE TRIED BRIDGES ARE THREATENED

Defendant Discharged by Judge By Ice Jams, Says Commissioner Enright—Man Had Been Badly Hammered Morse—Those Over Hale's Brook in Most Danger

The case of James Newton, charged with assault and battery upon Mike Trackim, finally came up for trial this morning after twice being continued. The alleged assault took place at the Saco-Lowell machine shop. The case has been held up on account of the complainant's being taken to the hospital immediately after the affair and being kept there until a few days ago.

Dr. Clark of the Lowell hospital was the first witness for the prosecution. His testimony dealt with the injuries of the complainant. Dr. Clark said that Trackim had a badly battered head when brought to the hospital. His first diagnosis was that he had a fractured skull and said that Trackim left the hospital against his, the doctor's protest. The injury in the opinion of the physician was caused by a blunt instrument and might have been brought about by a fall.

The complainant was the next witness and his testimony set forth that the defendant attacked him without saying a word. No previous trouble had occurred between himself and Newton, the complainant said.

While cross-examining the witness Lawyer Hogan introduced a "club" known as a "huff stick." He also brought in another tool made of steel called a "rife."

One of the complainant's countrymen was an eye witness of the affair, according to his own story. The defendant, said this witness, hit the Russian without provocation and knocked him unconscious. Upon being cross-examined by Lawyer Hogan, however, he admitted that he had asked several persons what the fight was about and attempted to get information concerning it, although saying that he saw all that transpired.

The foreman of the jury, Mr. Melcome, who is also a special officer, arrested the defendant, he said, because the complainant was badly hurt and had been taken to the hospital. He saw no blood on the floor where the fight took place.

The defense put several eye witnesses of the trouble on the stand. William Taylor, John Hesstan, John T. Lowe and William Heath all told stories which coincided at most points.

It seems, from that testimony, that the complainant called the defendant a fighting name after the two had had an argument over some portion of their work. The complainant then grabbed a "huff stick" and rushed at the defendant.

When Newton saw Mike coming toward him he clinched so as to escape the blows from the club. The club fell to the floor and soon after both men rolled to the floor with Mike on top of Newton. They were up against a "frame end" and Mike's head came in contact with this. There of the witnesses saw the blood trickling down from the complainant's scalp. When Judge Enright heard both sides of the story he ordered the defendant discharged.

Statutory Offense Charge

Joseph Smith was brought into court upon a statutory charge this morning and his lawyer, George Toye, waived the reading of the warrant and asked for a continuance until the 12th. The fact that the warrant did not bear the correct name of the defendant was brought and the lawyer was asked for the name. His objection was sustained by the court and the police will now have to find out who they are trying to prosecute.

Drunken Offenders

Probation Officer Slattery had an unusually large list of releases this morning. No less than fourteen first offenders were allowed to go forth after spending the night in the police station. Cornelius Haggerty made his third appearance of drunkenness within the year. He was in very bad physical shape this morning and his case was continued until Saturday.

James A. Riley, pleaded not guilty to being drunk last night. The two officers who made the arrest testified that the defendant was staggering and

Commissioner Morse of the streets and highways department says it seems to him that he will never get out of trouble, for he is just after getting over a bad stretch of about two weeks in clearing the streets of the deep snow, when another trouble of a more serious nature, however, now arises and that is, that a number of small bridges spanning Hale's brook are in constant danger of being carried away by the high tide and ice. Hale's brook has swollen to such a degree that a number of the manufacturing plants along its course were forced to suspend operations.

According to Mr. Morse, the water in the fields adjoining the brook in the vicinity of Lincoln, Tanner, Congress and Cambridge streets, is about five feet deep and the swift current carries along large cakes of ice which are threatening for the small bridges. The cellars of the Ideal Comb Co. and other manufacturing plants are flooded and the result of it is a temporary shut-down of the plants. The Lincoln street bridge is in great danger for the ice is frozen hard around its piers. A gang of about 200 men are at work breaking the ice with tools graciously furnished by the Locks & Canals Co.

The Cambridge and Congress street bridges are also in danger and Mr. Morse is constantly on the job directing this work in an endeavor to avert any disastrous damage. Mr. Morse laid off about a dozen men last night, and had it not been for the flood he would have done away with the services of a much larger number, but as above stated about two hundred employees are kept at work in breaking and removing large cakes of ice. For the past two weeks the commissioner has had 550 men on his payroll and he also paid large amounts for team hire. The hired teams were disposed of last Friday evening for they were not needed inasmuch as there remained but a little ice on some of the streets to clean up.

Park Dept.

Commissioner Carr of the park department is sending present letters to the policemen and other civic employees in an endeavor to raise money in his park campaign. Enclosed in the envelopes are also copies of the park report of the superintendent as well as a poem from the pen of J. W. Foley. The poem is dedicated to "Daddy" and Mr. Carr believes that the article will give other manifestations of being drunk. Defendant got four months and appealed.

Catherine Haskell was arrested yesterday afternoon on Middlesex street by Patrolman Drowett and brought into police court charged with drunkenness. She testified that she did not live with her husband and had several children to support. Judge Enright ordered a suspended sentence of four months to the house of correction at Cambridge.

James C. Burns, a third offender, was committed to jail for the term of four months. Mary E. Austin, accused of drunkenness, was placed on probation.

appeal to the fathers, inasmuch as he says that most of the poems dedicated to "Daddy" refer to the father as a drunkard, while the poem he is sending pays a great compliment to the head of the family.

Permit Granted

H. A. and M. B. Hildreth, owners of the building at the corner of Mt. Vernon and Parkman streets, occupied by Rice & Co., were granted a permit from the office of the superintendent of the public buildings department for repair of fire damage which will consist of interior repairs, new floors, etc., the cost of which will be $1500.

Henry and Walter J. Russell were also granted a permit for an addition to their garage at 133 Princeton street, the approximate cost of the work being $275.

Supply Dept.

Purchasing Agent Foxe is calling for bids for the sale of 25 cords of manure, which will close Tuesday morning. He is also asking for bids for 210 meters for the water department, the bids to be opened Wednesday morning.

Hearing Friday

Friday morning the Industrial Accident board will give a hearing at city hall and on March 11 another will be held at the same place.

BANQUET AT WAVERLY

MEMBERS OF FRESHMAN CLASS OF TEXTILE SCHOOL ASSEMBLED IN DOWN-TOWN HOTEL

The members of the freshman class of the Lowell Textile school assembled in the banquet hall of the Waverly hotel last night, the occasion being the annual freshman banquet and although the former events have been very successful all were eclipsed by this night's affair when nearly every member of the class was present and took part in the program.

As the members gathered around the festive board they discovered a handsome souvenir menu containing the names of the officers of the club beside each plate. After the many good things on the order had been done justice to an excellent musical program was furnished and there was speaking by several of those present. The affair broke up near the midnight hour, all grateful to the committee in charge and the host of the evening for the pleasure afforded them.

The committee in charge consisted of Norman P. Cullen, Henry Dover, Jas. G. Tannard and William F. Deady. The officers of the class are: President, Fred C. Hovey; vice president, Henry Dover; secretary-treasurer, H. W. Brucknerhoff.

NASHUA MILLS CLOSE

HIGH WATER IN MERRIMACK RIVER CAUSED SHUT-DOWN—1000 OUT OF WORK

NASHUA, N. H., March 4.—High water in the Merrimack river caused the shut-down today of the cotton mill of Jackson Brothers, throwing a thousand hands out of work. The river was 12 or 15 feet above normal and backed up into the Nashua river which at this time falls just above the city just 47 inches above normal. An ice gorge half a mile in extent above Taylor's falls bridge over the Merrimack was threatening that structure which connects Nashua and Hudson.

FRESHET IN THE RIVERS

Bridge Carried Away at Beaver Brook Mill—Ice in River Not Yet Broken Up

Five and eight-tenths feet of water is now going over the Pawtucket dam, according to the figures at the office of the Locks & Canals and unless a heavy rainfall strikes this section or the temperature rises enough to rapidly melt the snow on the roads and hills throughout New Hampshire, it is not believed that any serious damage will be done by overflowing rivers in or around Lowell.

The height of the Merrimack river remains about the same as it was throughout yesterday and the water has flowed over the Pawtucket dam at a height of nearly six feet since Monday afternoon. The ice above the dam is very thick, but the pressure of the flowing water is immense and it will require only a little more warm weather to break it up, according to the Sun's informant.

treasurer by the British government owing largely to a speech in Dublin when as representative of the Young Ireland revolutionary party Meagher had "declined to stigmatize the sword" and had given as a reason the famous passage beginning:

"At the blow a great nation started from the waters of the Atlantic." During the war, Meagher, of today a remarkable dream in which she saw her husband at work in a Lowell bakery, claims she is threatened with eviction from her home for non-payment of rent. Mrs. Todd, who has two daughters to take care of, has no resources or income and in case of eviction she has no place to go.

Mrs. Todd had planned to come to this city in an effort to locate her husband, but the big weather prevented her from so doing. Her finances, she states, are very low, and she has managed to "keep her head above water" up to the present time, by letting rooms, but during the past few months she has been unable to let the extra room.

SWORD OF GEN. MEAGHER

Will Rest Near Body of Fr. Corby Who in Midst of Shot and Shell, Gave Absolution to Soldiers

NOTRE DAME, Ind., March 4.—The sword of General Thomas Francis Meagher, commander of the Irish Brigade in the Civil war, was today presented to the university of Notre Dame to rest near the body of Father Corby, the chaplain, who with hands uplifted gave in the midst of shot and shell final absolution to the Irish soldiers on the battlefield of Gettysburg. The presentation of the sword to the university was made by United States Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, where General Meagher, died while acting as territorial governor.

W. Bourke Cockran of New York was the orator selected to tell of the significance that attaches to the sword of General Meagher. The general had been sentenced to be hanged for

FROZEN IN ICE PACK

STEAMER C. D. EASINGTON, LONG OVERDUE, OUT OF COAL, WATER AND FOOD

LOUISBURG, N. S., March 4.—Frozen in an ice pack and drifting at the mercy of the ocean currents off the southern coast of Cape Breton, out of coal and water and short of provisions, is the predicament of the steamer C. D. Easington, long overdue at this port. News of this effect reached here early today along with the report of the rescue of Officer Sabun and three of the steamer's crew. They were picked up off the ice near Gouln Island and to report the steamer's plight, but lost their bearings in a fog and were for many hours in an open boat. The Easington is in the winter coal trade and was probably from St. John, N. B., or Boston.

TO SAVE CITY $75,000

MAYOR CURLEY INSTRUCTS ALL DEPARTMENT HEADS TO PAY BILLS PROMPTLY

BOSTON, March 4.—Mayor Curley plans to save the city approximately $75,000 a year by having its bills paid promptly. He has instructed all department heads to return bills for supplies to the city auditor's office within seven days, making possible the securing of a two per cent. discount for payments made within 10 days. Another of the mayor's economy plans was disclosed in an order to department heads to make their annual reports short and to discontinue the practice of issuing them in expensively bound volumes.

CURLEY TO FIRE 500

Boston City Employees to be Dropped—Mayor Calls on Supt. Welch to Resign

BOSTON, March 4.—William J. Welch, superintendent of the water distribution division, will retire from the service April 1, it is said. His resignation was requested by Commissioner Bourke, acting for the mayor. Mr. Welch entered the service in 1888. During the first Fitzgerald administration he was made water commissioner but was removed by Mayor Hibbard. In 1910 the position of superintendent of the water distribution division was created for him. The salary is $3000 a year.

It is said Frank McCarthy, a former foreman of the Back Bay sewer yard, is picked for the position now held by Chief Engineer Dorr in the sewer division.

It was stated at city hall yesterday that Robert S. Peabody and Daniel H. Coakley, the two unpaid members of the park and recreation commission, who comprise the board until chairman is confirmed by the civil service commission, have refused to remove John E. McCarthy, former representative of ward 16 and cousin of Mayor Fitzgerald. He is upon the payroll as a veterinarian at a salary of $1000 a year.

Mayor Says 500 Will Be Discharged

That 500 men on the city payroll will be discharged and that another man will be hired this year, according to indications given by the condition of the city treasury, was the statement made by Mayor Curley yesterday at a hearing before the street commissioners. As he has repeatedly said that no laborers or mechanics will be discharged, men higher up or in other grades are the ones picked to go.

The hearing was on a petition of Fred L. Hewitt, representing the owners of the old American Sugar Refinery property, for the right to construct a spur track across West 1st st., South Boston, to connect with the plant, as a part of the plan of development for that and neighboring property. Mayor Curley advocated the petition on the ground that building the track means construction of a $250,000 building and an aid to business.

Several remonstrants argued that the track would be in the nature of a nuisance.

Later in the day the street commissioners granted the petition.

Seeks Discount on Supply Bills

Mayor Curley yesterday notified the heads of departments that in future all bills for supplies must be returned so that the city auditor may take advantage of a 2 per cent. discount generally allowed on the payment of bills within 10 days. By carrying this out all through departments there may be an annual saving of some $65,000, even if the discount cannot be applied to more than two-thirds of the $5,000,000 spent annually by the city of Boston for supplies.

The mayor has also sent notices to the heads of departments requesting that in future, when making up their annual reports, all unnecessary matter must be eliminated. The cost of getting out bulky volumes that are rarely consulted because of their size and the amount of unnecessary matter is a waste of money, he thinks.

First assistant assessors, numbering about 100, are presently engaged in learning unofficially yesterday that their positions are not as secure as they thought. The information was to the effect that if Mayor Curley finds the legislative act of last year placing first assistant assessors under civil service is not operative because of the act, which provided that both political parties shall be represented, has never been repealed, he will cause many changes among the present incumbents. They serve at a salary of $1000 a year each. As to political designation the men are now equally divided.

PLEW DIES ON GALLOWES

MURDERER EXECUTED AT WEATHERSFIELD, CONN.—MRS. WAKEFIELD HAS APPEALED

HARTFORD, Conn., March 4.—James Plew, who murdered William Wakefield at Middletown last June, in order that he might marry Mrs. Wakefield, was hanged in the state prison at Weathersfield early this morning.

In a cell in the "death row," not many hundred feet away from the execution chamber, was Mrs. Wakefield, under sentence of death for complicity in the crime. She was originally sentenced to die with Plew, but arguments were made for a new trial before the supreme court on the very day she was sentenced to be hanged, the appeal acting as a stay of execution.

Plew made a request that he see Mrs. Wakefield before he died, but this privilege was denied him by the prison rules.

Calm and unafraid he entered the execution chamber at 12:02 o'clock. Twenty-two seconds later he was strangled, the death cap and nose adjusted and the trap sprung by Warden Garner. At 12:13 o'clock the physicians pronounced him dead.

Plew was a descendant of the famous Jukes family, which has produced, it is said, nearly 1000 degenerates. While Mrs. Wakefield looked on, Plew dragged Wakefield on the night of June 21 and then dragged him to a nearby woods where he shot and stabbed him to death. The body was found some days later.

Both Plew and Mrs. Wakefield were arrested charged with the crime. Plew pleaded guilty. Mrs. Wakefield was found guilty of a "fur" and was sentenced to be hanged with Plew. Her appeal for a new trial, however, acts as a stay of execution.

If life seems a burden to you because you are nervous, excitable or irritable, if you have backache, headaches, unnatural pains at times, it is because the functions of the feminine organs are not being performed as nature intended. # A Nervous Wreck Saved

Mrs. Elizabeth Lordell, Berkeley, Cal., says: "Thousands of dollars would not repay me for what Dr. Pierce's medicine has done for me. I was a nervous wreck when I began taking it, and they quickly cured me in a short time, at little cost. Now I can invest my money in real estate instead of doctor bills, and I enjoy excellent health. Am never without your medicine. One thing I appreciate about it is that they do not contain any alcohol."

"Several years ago I was completely broken down in health from overwork and being on my feet constantly. I spent several hundred dollars on doctors and medicines but with little result. The doctors told me it was womanly trouble and I was to keep on being on my feet too much. I was nothing and had pains all over my body and was so nervous that I could scream if any one talked to me or even looked at me. I had the good fortune to meet a nurse who had been cured by using Dr. Pierce's medicine. She had practically the same ailment that I was suffering from and she advised me to use the Favorite Prescription and the result was that I was cured in a few months. I have never had an occasion to consult a physician since and in excellent health. I have always kept a box of your medicine on hand."

touring New York Giants and Chicago White Sox who are due to arrive from England some time Friday.

One party will be made up of James A. Gilmore, president, and other officials of the Federal league, who will make an effort to gain light of the major league clubs. The other party will be made up of eighty baseball enthusiasts and friends of Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox.

Before leaving for New York, Charles Weeghman, president, and Joe Tinker, manager of the Chicago Federal club, took part in the ceremony attending the beginning of work on the new Federal league park here.

NEAR PANIC IN THEATRE

WOMAN ALARMED BY SMOKE OF SMOKE FROM MOVING PICTURE BOOTH

HAVERHILL, Mass., 4.—When an unknown woman was heard to whisper that she smelled smoke and was going out, 1500 people in the audience of the Academy of Music took to their feet and hurriedly seizing wraps started for the single front exit, but all danger of a panic was averted when the orchestra struck up a rollicking march, the house lights blazed up and the audience requested the audience to sit down.

Clouds of smoke which had filled the theatre rolled up to the ventilators and soon disappeared, after which the performance continued.

The cause of the excitement was the burning out of a motor in the moving picture booth, the smoke and odor entering into the auditorium while the operator, cutting out his motor, continued to operate the machine by hand without thinking of the fear which the smoke might create.

The movement was sudden and concerted and 800 persons were at the back rail before they could be checked. Building Inspector Robert H. Mitchell seemed to be the signal of safety, for as he stood up near the front of the house and smiled, the people appeared to take courage and slowly returned to their seats. Not a single injury was reported. No one shouted any alarm nor was there a suggestion of apprehension from any one in the audience after it had risen and started for the door.

OFFICER J. H. CLARK THE CHIEF WITNESS

Given Severe Cross Examination by Lawyer O'Connor—Two Officers Gave Demonstration of Objectionable Movements—Officer Swanwick Testified—Case on Tomorrow

The spectacle of two police officers, in uniform, dancing the tango in a police court, was a sight that has never before been witnessed in this city. The court, which was held in the Lincoln hall, was presided over by Judge Enright. The case was brought against Officer John H. Clark, who was charged with having committed a crime. The court was crowded with spectators, and the atmosphere was one of intense interest. The case was heard for several hours, and the court adjourned until tomorrow.

The dance, which was performed by Officer Clark and another officer, was a tango. The officers were dressed in their uniforms, and the dance was performed in a room that was filled with spectators. The dance was a very lively one, and the officers were very skilled. The court was very interested in the dance, and the case was heard for several hours. The court adjourned until tomorrow.

OFFICER JOHN H. CLARK
Dance Inspector

On the night of the dance but on the following Saturday night, he told of conversations he had with the defendants when he read the warrants to them. The girl, he said, told him that she did not know Mr. Hennessy very well and that she thought their dancing at Lincoln hall on the night in question was all right. He said Mr. Hennessy told him he thought he was dancing properly, and that he would not dance any other way if he knew it.

Mr. O'Connor cross-questioned Officer Clark and devoted his best efforts to an attempt to arrive at some definite understanding as to the officers' capabilities or qualifications as a judge of dancers and dancing. "What class of crime would the conduct of the dancers come under?" asked Mr. O'Connor. "Felonies," replied the witness. The officer had already stated felony meant a state prison offense, and he asked to have it changed to misdemeanor rather than felony. Witness said he was familiar with the section under which the complaint was made and Mr. O'Connor asked him why he considered a warrant necessary, when it is stated in the section that for "lewd, lascivious and wanton" conduct a warrant is not necessary. The officer did not make any specific answer to this question. At 12:30 o'clock the court adjourned to 2 o'clock.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

At the regular meeting of the school board held last night one ballot was taken for the election of a principal for the Edison school to succeed the late Calvin Burbank. Christopher J. Hagan received two votes, John V. Maclean received one vote and there were two members not voting, Mr. Lambert and Mr. Simpson. There being no choice, it was finally decided that Miss Frances Webster be appointed temporarily to serve as acting principal at the pleasure of the board.

Leave of absence for the remainder of the school year was granted to Bertha M. Rowlandson, and for two months, to Marlon E. Greene.

It was voted on recommendation of the committee on school houses and grounds that a small strip of land adjoining the Franklin school yard be leased to George F. White for $5 a year.

A letter from Henry F. Carr of the park commission, asking for a conference on the matter of raising funds for playgrounds, was read by the secretary and was voted to invite Mr. Carr to meet with the board at the next regular meeting, March 31, at 7:30 o'clock.

Several applications for teachers' positions were read by the secretary and a letter from Daisy C. Abbott asking to be considered for a position in the Industrial school was referred to the principal of that school.

Supr. Miller read ten letters from as many applicants for the position of principal of the Edison school, but, according to the school rules, no out-of-town applicant can be considered until the local field has been thoroughly canvassed or until the fact is established that local candidates for the position are not fitted for it. The letters came from Mr. James H. Morse of Andover; Frederick A. Galvin of Melrose; Henry T. Parlo of Lexington; Myron A. Arnold of Everett; Thomas L. Allen of South Framingham; W. M. Cullen of Lewiston, Me.; Andrew G. Johnson of Pawtucket, R. I.; William G. Currier of Hyannis, and Martin A. Seymour of Danvers.

Ballot for Principal

Mr. Campbell, as member of the sub-committee of the Edison school, referred to the death of the principal of that school, Calvin W. Burbank, and suggested that it would not be advisable to allow the school to go along without a governing board. Mr. Thompson seconded Mr. Campbell's motion and before doing so suggested that a page in the annual report of the school committee be dedicated to Mr. Burbank who had served the city so faithfully as teacher for 25 years. He offered this as a motion and it was seconded by Mr. Campbell. Then the question came on Mr. Campbell's motion for the election of a principal.

Mr. Simpson Not Ready

Mr. Simpson said that while he realized it was important that the position of principal at the Edison school should be filled as soon as possible he thought it would be best to wait a little while in order to give the members an opportunity to look the ground over more thoroughly. "Mr. Burbank," he said, "was a very efficient principal and we should endeavor to get as his successor, a man thoroughly fitted for the position. I have not had time to give the matter due consideration for Mr. Burbank has been dead but a few days. I will not be able to vote at this time."

Mr. Campbell Replies

Mr. Campbell said: "I feel that I am justified in moving for the election of a principal for the Edison school. I do not mean any offense to the memory of Mr. Burbank or to his family. I thoroughly appreciated him as man and teacher, but had he been permitted to live I think you will all agree with me that he would not have held office longer than June. In view of that fact it cannot be said that there is anything very sudden about choosing his successor. The Edison school is a very important one. The district there is rather unusual one and I think it behooves us to take some action to select a principal."

Dr. Lambert Would Wait

While admitting that the district was a very important one, Dr. Lambert thought the committee ought to take enough time to consider the various applicants. He spoke of how able the position had been filled by Mr. Burbank and he thought his successor should be a man of wide experience. "As far as I know," said Dr. Lambert, "there are but two local candidates for the position and not until tonight did I know there were ten out-of-town applicants for the position. If a majority of the board is satisfied with either one of the two local candidates, well and good, but I feel that I would like to look over the ground a little more thoroughly. I think we would be looking after the interests of the school by appointing the assistant principal as acting principal for the time being. I think we would be capable of taking care of any immediate necessities that might arise. We should move very cautiously in this matter. I would like to see the motion for the election of a principal prevail tonight."

School Without Head

Mr. Thompson said he did not think that so important a school as the Edison should be allowed to go along without a head. As for the assistant principal, Miss Webster, he had the highest regard, but he could see no reason why the committee should not elect a principal at once. He said that local candidates had had ample time to file their applications and he felt that the two local candidates in the field were worthy of consideration.

Dr. Lambert Agrees

Dr. Lambert said he would not feel like supporting the two local candidates until he had done a little canvassing. "I am not saying but what I have had ample opportunity to canvass."

vass," said the doctor, "but I feel that there isn't any very great necessity of proceeding to the election of a principal at this time. I am sure that the school will not suffer under the able guidance of Miss Webster."

Man at the Helm

Mr. Campbell called Dr. Lambert's attention to the records of a meeting held August 21, at which time a principal for the Greenhalge school was elected. He said that the election was made within fifteen minutes after the resignation of the former principal was read. "Why isn't this a parallel case?" I had not time then to look over the candidates," said Mr. Campbell, he then called for the question. The motion was put and the result was as follows: Campbell and Thompson for Hagan; Chase for Maclean and Lambert and Simpson not voting.

For Temporary Principal

Mr. Campbell then moved that Mr. Hagan be appointed to serve temporarily, and at the pleasure of the board, as principal of the Edison school. Mr. Thompson seconded the motion. Mr. Campbell called attention to the fact that Mr. Hagan had served one year at the Edison school as principal, "and I found," said Mr. Campbell, "that the parents were perfectly satisfied with his administration. I repeat that somebody should be at the head of the school. It is no place for a woman."

Compromising the Honor

Dr. Lambert said the board would be compromising itself by appointing instead of electing a principal. If there is not a majority to elect a principal, he said, I would not vote to appoint a man who is an active candidate. I would object very strenuously to such procedure.

Mr. Campbell said he had made the motion in good faith and that he did not think he was compromising himself in any way. He called for a ye and nay vote on his motion and it was defeated by a vote of four to one.

Miss Webster Appointed

Mr. Simpson then moved that Miss Webster be made temporary head of the Edison school. "Realizing, as I do that there should be some head to the school," said Mr. Campbell, "I will second the motion" and it was voted unanimously that Miss Webster be appointed acting principal to serve at the pleasure of the board. The question of salary was referred to the finance committee. Adjourned.

ONE YEAR AS PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Washington residents of many years to whom the ways and manners of a president have been a matter of intimate observation, have watched President Wilson with interest. The president completes one year as chief executive today.

other speeches were made to the American Red Cross society last December and one to the Daughters of the American Revolution. His trips out of Washington have been few. While Congress has been in session the president has made it a point to be at his desk continuously.

Mr. Wilson appears with a uniformed aide only at army or navy functions and the motor cycles which used to precede the president's motor car, have been substituted by an automobile with secret service men who follow inconspicuously behind so that the president drives about Washington attracting but little attention.

MINOR LEAGUE OWNERS

TO MEET IN NEW YORK AND DISCUSS LOSS OF MANY PLAYERS TO FEDERAL LEAGUE

NEW YORK, March 4.—The loss of many players to the Federal league and plans to offset the invasion will be discussed here Friday by owners and representatives of minor league baseball clubs.

The special meeting has been called by the International league. Thomas M. Chivington of the American association, and John H. Farrell of Auburn, secretary of the National Association of Minor leagues, will represent more than 30 per cent. of the smaller leagues. All the clubowners of both leagues will be here by Friday and it is likely that the big organizations will get together and help the minors in any way they can.

In view of the Federal invasion of Brooklyn, the International league may reconsider its action last month and transfer the Jersey City club to Brooklyn to play at Ebbetts field when the Federals are at Washington park. Baltimore and Buffalo will also have to defend themselves against the Federal invasion while the American association must formulate plans to fight the Federals in Kansas City and Indianapolis.

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To half a pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbos Compound, and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp diseases, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Genuine Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention The Lowell Sun.

Maybe I can help you a bit—that's what the railroad pays me to do. If you want some stuff about the country and a free map, and all about the cheap tickets and good trains, why just write me and I will tell you what I know.

NOTED PRIEST DIED TODAY

REV. JOSEPH LEFEBVRE, O. M. I.

Rev. Joseph Lefebvre, O. M. I., Former Rector of St. Joseph's Church, Dead—Sketch of His Labors in the Order

Rev. Joseph Lefebvre, O. M. I., the noted priest, died at the rectory in Meriden, Conn., at 6.30 o'clock, the cause of death being a former stroke of the heart.

man received on Feb. 25 during the supper hour. Fr. Lefebvre, who would have been 75 years old on April 13, was one of the best known priests of this city, and his death will be a keen blow to his many friends in the various churches in which he has been stationed since his ordination.

Rev. Joseph Lefebvre, O. M. I., was born at St. Constant, Que., from the marriage of Joseph Medard Lefebvre and Marie Tremblay, both natives of Normandy, France. He studied in his home village and later entered the Montreal seminary, where he graduated with honors in 1851, at which time he entered the Oblate order. He made his novitiate in Montreal and studied theology at the Ottawa university, where he was ordained to the priesthood in 1855. He remained at the university a number of years as professor of theology and later was transferred to St. Sauter, Que., where he helped build the parish, remaining there until 1871.

In 1871 the distinguished clergyman came to Lowell as assistant pastor of St. Joseph's parish, making his home at the rectory of the Immaculate Conception church. Two years later he was appointed pastor of the parish, and at the close of his term of office Fr. Lefebvre was appointed pastor of St. Pierre's parish, Montreal, where he was stationed 25 years.

In 1897 he was appointed special delegate of the Oblate Order to the general chapter of the order which was held in Rome and at that time he was granted an audience by His Holiness Leo XIII. In 1893 he was again a delegate to the general chapter held in Paris, France. In 1893 he was elected provincial of the order for Canada and the United States and served as such in a very efficient manner for two consecutive terms, or six years, being stationed in Lowell. In 1900 he was called to Europe by the provincial general on important business and during his sojourn abroad he attended the Paris exposition. Four years later he made another voyage across the ocean and visited His Holiness Pope Pius X. In 1904 he was appointed pastor of St. Joseph's parish and at that time he celebrated his golden jubilee. In 1907 he was succeeded by the late Rev. Joseph Campbell, O. M. I.

At the close of his pastorate at St. Joseph's, Fr. Lefebvre was appointed chaplain of the French-American orphanage by His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell and held the position until the time of his death. On Wednesday morning, Feb. 25, Fr. Lefebvre celebrated mass in the private chapel of the rectory and all day he seemed in good health, although his advanced age began to show. In the evening he was seized with a paralytic shock and despite the best efforts of medical skill he passed away this morning.

Rev. J. H. Baquette, O. M. I., Ph. D., pastor of St. Joseph's parish, announced this noon that the funeral of the late Rev. Joseph Lefebvre, O. M. I., who at the time of his death was assistant provincial of the Oblate order, will be held Friday morning. The celebrant of the mass of requiem has not as yet been chosen, and this mat-

At five o'clock this afternoon the body of the late priest will be removed to the lower part of St. Jean Baptiste church, where it will lie in state until Friday morning. The church will be open until 10 o'clock this evening and the parishioners will be given an opportunity to cast a last glance on one they loved and respected. The remains will remain in state at the church until Friday morning, at which time they will be conveyed to St. Joseph's church in Lee street, where at 9 o'clock the office for the dead will be chanted. A solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated at 10 o'clock and burial will take place in the Oblate cemetery in Foxborough.

A sister of deceased, Mrs. Bessie St. Constant, Que., as well as one of his nieces, Miss Evelyn Lefebvre from the same place, arrived in Lowell this morning and they will remain here until after the funeral.

LARGE SUMS IN REBATES

Charges by Lamar and Green—Former Presents Alleged Agreement Between Steel Corps.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—In response to the senate resolution requesting the inter-state commerce commission to inquire into the desirability of investigating charges by David Lamar and William H. Green that the United States Steel corporation had received during the last six years, immense sums in freight rebates, the commission probably will report that the necessity for the investigation does not exist.

At the conclusion of the hearing today Lamar submitted what purported to be an agreement between the Federal Steel Co. and the Carnegie Steel Co. by which the former was to pay the latter 10 cents a ton from the published rate for carrying ores from the Minnesota mines to Lake Superior ports. The agreement, it was said, was made before the organization of the steel corporation and never became effective. Lamar declared that this was the basis of his charge of a rebate conspiracy and that he had no other documents to present. Certified copies of entries on the books of the steel corporation showing rebates which were promised at yesterday's hearings were not produced. "I feel," said Lamar, "that I have performed all the duty on me in the matter."

C. A. Severance, counsel for the steel corporation, declined to cross examine Lamar or Green, saying their statements were not evidential. Other witnesses whom Lamar asked to be subpoenaed probably will not be summoned.

The commission recalled that a new basis for class rates on the Boston & Maine had been prepared as a result of the investigation by various state commissions and interstate commerce commissioners. Prouty and said the new local tariffs were in the hands of the printer. "It is evident," says the commission, "that any intelligent and consistent treatment of the questions presented by the petition must rest upon this basis as a cornerstone, and that neither joint rates nor commodity tariffs can be properly considered before the completion of the fundamental basis."

P. C. Church held the insurance in the name of Elizabeth Ober, on the contents of building No. 49, Branch street damaged by fire this morning.

RAILROAD RATES

New Local Class and Commodity Rates Will be Ordered Soon

BOSTON, March 4.—New local class and revised commodity rates on railroads in the state will be ordered soon, according to announcement made by the public service commission in dismissing today a petition for a revision of local freight rates at Haverhill.

The Haverhill Boxboard Co. asked for a revision of rates on the Boston & Maine and joint rates in connection with the Boston & Albany and the New Haven roads.

The commission recalled that a new basis for class rates on the Boston & Maine had been prepared as a result of the investigation by various state commissions and interstate commerce commissioners. Prouty and said the new local tariffs were in the hands of the printer. "It is evident," says the commission, "that any intelligent and consistent treatment of the questions presented by the petition must rest upon this basis as a cornerstone, and that neither joint rates nor commodity tariffs can be properly considered before the completion of the fundamental basis."

ASSAULT CASE TRIED BRIDGES ARE THREATENED

Defendant Discharged by Judge Enright—Man Had Been Badly Hammered By Ice Jams, Says Commissioner Morse—Those Over Hale's Brook in Most Danger

The case of James Newton, charged with assault and battery upon Mike Trackim, finally came up for trial this morning after twice being continued.

The alleged assault took place at the Saco-Lowell machine shop. The case has been held up on account of the complainant's being taken to the hospital immediately after the affair and being kept there until a few days ago.

Dr. Clark of the Lowell hospital was the first witness for the prosecution. His testimony dealt with the injuries of the complainant. Dr. Clark said that Trackim had a badly battered head when brought to the hospital. His first diagnosis was that he had a fractured skull and said that Trackim left the hospital against his, the doctor's protest. The injury in the opinion of the physician, was caused by a blunt instrument and might have been brought about by a fall.

The complainant was the next witness and his testimony set forth that the defendant attacked him without saying a word. No previous trouble had occurred between himself and Newton, the complainant said.

While cross-examining the witness, Lawyer Hogan introduced a club known as a "buff stick." He also brought in another tool made of steel called a "rest."

One of the complainant's countrymen was an eye witness of the affair, according to his own story. The defendant said this witness, hit the Russian without provocation and knocked him unconscious. Upon being cross-examined by Lawyer Hogan, however, he admitted that he had asked several persons what the fight was about and attempted to get information concerning it, although saying that he saw all that transpired.

The foreman of the jury, Mr. Welton, who is also a special officer, arrested the defendant, he said, because the complainant was badly hurt and had been taken to the hospital. He saw no blood on the floor where the fight took place.

The defence put several eye witnesses of the trouble on the stand. William Taylor, John Hession, John T. Lowe and William Heath all told stories which coincided at most points.

It seems from that testimony, that the complainant called the defendant a fighting name after the two had had an argument over some portion of their work. The complainant then grabbed a "buff stick" and rushed at the defendant.

When Newton saw Mike coming toward him he clinched so as to escape the blows from the club. The club fell to the floor and soon after both men rolled to the floor with Mike on top of Newton. They were up against a "frame end" and Mike's head came in contact with this. Three of the witnesses saw the blood trickling down from the complainant's scalp. When Judge Enright heard both sides of the story he ordered the defendant discharged.

Statutory Offense Charge
Joseph Smith was brought into court upon a statutory charge this morning and his lawyer, George Joyce, waived the reading of the warrant and asked for a continuance until the 12th. The fact that the warrant did not bear the correct name of the defendant was brought and the lawyer was asked for the name. His objection was sustained by the court and the police will now have to find out who they are trying to prosecute.

Drunk Offenders

Probation Officer Shattuck had an unusually large list of releases this morning and his lawyer, George Joyce, waived the reading of the warrant and asked for a continuance until the 12th. The fact that the warrant did not bear the correct name of the defendant was brought and the lawyer was asked for the name. His objection was sustained by the court and the police will now have to find out who they are trying to prosecute.

James A. Riley pleaded not guilty to being drunk last night. The two officers who made the arrest testified that the defendant was staggering and

Commissioner Morse of the streets and highways department says it seems to him that he will never get out of trouble, for he is just after getting over a bad stretch of about two weeks in clearing the streets of the deep snow, when another trouble of a more serious nature, however, now arises and that is, a number of small bridges spanning Hale's brook are in danger of being carried away by the high tide and ice.

It is estimated that such a degree that a number of the manufacturing plants along its course were forced to suspend operations.

According to Mr. Morse the water in the fields adjoining the brook in the vicinity of Lincoln, Chandler, Conover and Cambridge streets, is about five feet deep and the swift current is threatening for the small bridges. The collapse of the Allen Comb Co. and other manufacturing plants are feared and the result of it is a temporary shut-down of the plants.

The Cambridge and Congress street bridges are in danger and Mr. Morse is constantly on the job directing the work in an endeavor to avoid any disastrous damage.

Mr. Morse said that a dozen men last night, and had it not been for the fact that they would have done away with the bridges of a much larger number. The above stated about two hundred employees are kept at work in heating and removing large cakes of ice from the past two weeks the commissioner has had 650 men on his payroll and he also paid large amounts for team hire. The hired teams were disposed of last Friday evening of the present and of inasmuch as there is no ice on the ice on some of the streets to clean up.

Park Dept.

Commissioner Carr of the park department is sending personal letters to the policemen and other city employees in an endeavor to raise money in his park campaign. Enclosed in the envelopes are also copies of the park report of the superintendent as well as a poem from the pen of J. W. Foley. The poem is dedicated to "Daddy" and Mr. Carr believes that the article will give other manifestations of being drunk. Defendant got four months and appealed.

Catherine Haskell was arrested yesterday afternoon on Middlesex street by Patrolman Drowett and brought into police court charged with drunkenness. She testified that she did not live with her husband and had several children to support. Judge Enright ordered a suspended sentence of four months to the house of correction at Cambridge.

James C. Bagg, a third offender, was committed to jail for the term of four months. Mary E. Austin, accused of drunkenness, was placed on probation.

appeal to the fathers, inasmuch as he says that most of the poems dedicated to "Daddy" refer to the father as a drunkard, while the poem he is sending pays a great compliment to the head of the family.

Banquet at Waverly

Members of the freshman class of the Lowell Textile school assembled in the banquet hall of the Waverly hotel last night, the occasion being the annual freshman banquet and although the former events have been very successful all were eclipsed by last night's affair when nearly every member of the class was present and took part in the program.

The members of the program around the festive board they discovered a handsome souvenir menu containing the names of the officers of the club beside each place. After the many good things on the order had been done justice to an excellent musical program was furnished and there was speaking by several of those present. The affair broke up near the midnight hour, all grateful to the committee in charge and the host of the evening for the pleasure afforded them.

The committee in charge consisted of Norman P. Cushey, Henry Dwyer, Jas. G. Townsend and William F. Hendy. The officers of the class are: President, Fred C. Hayes, vice president, Henry Dwyer, secretary-treasurer, H. W. Brickerhoff.

Nashua Mills Close

Five and eight-tenths feet of water is now going over the Pawtucket dam, according to the figures at the office of the Locks & Canals and unless a heavy rainfall strikes this section of the temperature rises enough to rapidly melt the snow on the roads and hills throughout New Hampshire, it is not believed that any serious damage will be done by overflowing rivers in the height of Lowell.

The report of the Merrimack river remains about the same as it was throughout yesterday and the water has flowed over the Pawtucket dam at a height of nearly six feet since Monday afternoon. The ice above the dam is very thick, but the pressure of the flowing water is immense and it will require only a little more warm weather or a break in the ice, according to the Sun's informant.

Flashboards Carried Away

The flashboards at the dam of the Beaver Brook Shoddy mill in Collinsville were carried away into yesterday afternoon by the high water and a small bridge owned by one of the mill was also loosened from its foundation and carried over the falls into a nearby meadow. As far as could be learned none of the mills in that section were flooded by the high water and the superintendents report that there is no fear as yet.

SAW HUSBAND IN DREAM

ROXBURY WOMAN THREATENED WITH EVICTION THINKS HUSBAND IS IN LOWELL

Mrs. Bella C. Todd of 304 Warren street, Roxbury, who believes her husband is employed in Lowell, having had a remarkable dream in which she saw her husband at work in a Lowell bakery, claims she is threatened with eviction from her home for non-payment of rent. Mrs. Todd, who has two daughters to take care of, has no resources of income and in case of eviction she has no place to go.

Mrs. Todd had planned to come to this city in an effort to locate her husband, but the bad weather prevented her from so doing. Her finances, she states, are very low, and she has arranged to keep her head above water up to the present time by letting rooms, but during the past few months she has been unable to let the extra room.

BORDER STATE GOVERNORS WHO WANT U. S. TO INTERVENE IN MEXICO

GOV. McDONALD

GOV. HUNT

TUCSON, Ariz., March 4.—George W. F. Hunt, governor of Arizona, and William C. McDonald, governor of New Mexico, have joined with Governor Colquhoun of Texas in insisting that the United States authorities intervene in Mexico and preserve order along the border. The states bordering on Mexico have been heavy sufferers from the chaotic conditions existing in northern Mexico since Madero began the revolution which made him president.

ON PICTURESQUE MEXICO

Dr. John C. Bowker Gave Highly Interesting Talk to the Lowell Teachers' Organization

Before the Lowell teachers' organization in the high school hall yesterday afternoon, Dr. John C. Bowker gave a highly instructive lecture on Mexico, illustrated by some splendidly colored views. He had pictures illustrative of the history of Mexico from the earliest times as shown in their pottery, ruins and other traces of early civilization, and what was of still greater interest, he has many views of present day life in the republic of revolutions. There were many evidences of the splendor and misery of the very poor, but Dr. Bowker made one also realize the luxury and culture of the higher classes. One of the pictures showed a magnificent public bath in which the bathers disported in a basin of pure oxy, a precious substance more commonly used than marble in parts of Mexico. Of industrial possibilities for American capital in Mexico, Dr. Bowker does not feel very enthusiastic. As in the days of the emperor Maximilian it refuses to pay France the sums stipulated, so today it will refuse to pay just debts. The lecturer also regretted that cotton mills are being erected in Mexico. He says trade with them should be mutual but that they should not be permitted to manufacture things that are ours by heredity. Of the political outlook which is so interesting at the present time, Dr. Bowker spoke at some length. He considers Mexico unfit for the republican form of government as the lower classes seem unable to reason, and are swayed by passion and passing emotions. He does not think there will be peace until some benevolent despot of the type of Porfirio Diaz arises. Intervention he considers hopeless as a means of settling the internal affairs of Mexico, because it would unite all factions there and would not entail eventual calm. He also said that those who favor intervention do not stop to reckon the cost, which would be enormous. One of the curios of Mexico, according to Dr. Bowker is the predilection of Mexicans for the native wine which are made from the cactus and which are utterly demoralizing. He showed many pictures of Mexican ensembles, the names of some of which had a superabundance of local color. One was "Woman, the snake," and another unlabeled "resort was 'The Dove'." "You might be a dove when you want in there," said Dr. Bowker, "but you'd be a roaring turkey buzzard when you came out." Dr. Bowker was candid rather than chivalrous about the beauty of the Mexican women, who according to him are rarely of the snorita class. They are very beautiful when young, but time is not kind to them. Dr. Bowker goes to New York today to have dinner with Felix Diaz, nephew of the exiled president. He would not venture a prediction as to the future of Mexico, but repeated his assertion that hope for that country is in the arising of another Diaz, and he said there is a possibility that Felix Diaz may be the right man—though of this he was not emphatic. Before the lecture a brief business meeting of the Teachers' organization was held, at which Charles W. Moroy, master of the Highland school, was made an honorary member, and a tribute to the memory of the late Calvin W. Burbank, prepared by his associate teachers in the Edson school, was read.

In either hand which when it connects never fails to drop his opponent. Fritz's recent victories over Jack Conners and Soldier Kearns, both of whom he defeated in a masterful style, placed him in the front rank of the heavies.

Athletes and Athletics

The Federals are still after Ray Collins and by the same token Bill Carrigan is very much upset. Just what the southpaw will do no one seems to have the least idea at present.

Yale sprung a surprise last night when the Columbia basketball team failed to uncover enough floor work to win from the Blue boys. The team from New Haven made a very poor start in their basketball campaign but today none of the college quintets seem to have a chance with them.

Everything went off very smoothly at the meeting of the New England league to take action on the schedule which the committee on this detail submitted in the magnates. Owner Roach and Manager Gray were right in the front row at the session. The season will start on April 29.

The Bunting club is getting busy for a long and active athletic campaign and the committee in charge of the club's athletics is taking all possible steps to stir up interest among the members for a championship soccer team. Negotiations are now under way for a match between the local club and the Harvard boaters.

President Somers is authority for the statement that Pitcher Blanding is back in the Cleveland fold once more. Blanding signed a Federal league contract some time ago but has repented of his action and has been relieved with open arms by his old boss. This is one of the cases that has so aroused President Gilmore of the outlaws that he has gone on record as saying that baseball war is sure to be in full swing before the opening of the 1914 season.

Prize Fights Between Negroes and White Boxers Barred
Duchess and Hanson Both Claim Victory in Bout Friday Night

SPRINGFIELD, March 4.—The accumulation of snow and ice in the Connecticut river, water shed from northern New Hampshire to the sea is said to be the heaviest at this season for many years. The average depth of snow in the valley is 11 inches, ranging from three inches at Hartford, Conn., to 20 inches at Wells River, Vt., and even deeper in the woods farther to the north. The ice is unusually thick with 14 inches at the dam at Holyoke, 20 inches at Brattleboro, and 40 inches at the Wells River near the mouth of the Ammonoosuc.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 4.—Prize fights between negroes and white fighters will not be permitted in Wisconsin under a ruling announced today by the state boxing commission. This action will prevent the proposed fight at Kenosha between Sam Langford, the Boston negro, and Carl Morris of Oklahoma.

Hanson vs. Duchess will be the card for the main bout of the grapple carnival that will be staged at Association hall next Friday night, and a better selection of grapplers could not have been procured to bring out the old time interest in the sport. Lowell fans have not had an opportunity to see a wrestling match here for several years and the promoters plan to give them a thriller for their first go.

FISH AND GAME
Meeting of the Association held Last Night With Good Attendance—New Laws Discussed

The Lowell Fish and Game Association held a meeting in Odd Fellows temple on Middlesex street last evening for the purpose of taking some action relative to the new fish and game law which has been submitted to the various associations throughout the state by the fish and game commission. Before introducing the bill into the legislature the commission wishes to secure the opinion of the associations in cities and towns throughout the state.

President L. A. Derby called the meeting to order shortly after 8 o'clock and declared it open for discussion. The greater number of those present were in favor of the bill as a whole but exceptions were taken to some of its clauses. It was decided after considerable discussion that the matter be laid on the table until the next meeting, which is scheduled to take place during the month of April.

A motion was made by Simon B. Itard that the meeting go on record as in favor of the appointment of a Deputy Game Commissioner for the entire state in order that the existing laws may be properly enforced. The motion was seconded and carried. The reason for this action is the fact that, according to statements made at the meeting, fishing is carried on openly in many of the closed brooks and ponds and the police officials claim that they have no jurisdiction over such cases. Under such conditions it would be necessary to send to Boston for an officer to handle them. Senator Henry J. Derby and Secretary William B. McCarthy were appointed a committee of two to wait upon the state fish and game commission in this matter.

For the benefit of those who are interested in the proposed bill, a copy can be seen at the store of H. J. Gonzalez, 15 Gorham street.

JOE BISAILON,
Newton Wrestler, Who Will Tackle Ed. Madduck Friday Night.

be a marvel at all the intricacies of the wat game his opponent on Friday night has age and strength in his favor. Although Hanson has at last met his means or beyond the age where a wrestler loses his greatest efficiency, Duchess is a younger man and has not been through so many galling contests as has the Swede.

The friends of Duchess are claiming that Hanson has at last met his match in their protegee and that Friday night will see the downfall of one of the game's greatest exponents. Those who have seen Hanson perform recently, however, say that Fritz is going as well as he ever did and can throw any man in the world who will make within ten pounds of his weight. There will be a big party of Duchess's friends from New Bedford at the bout Friday night.

Preceding the big bout between Tom Duchess and Fritz Hanson at Association hall, Friday night, Joe Bisailon of Newton, formerly of Lowell, and Ed. Madduck, the crack New Britain, Conn., wrestler, will clash to a finish at catch-as-catch-can style. Bisailon is wrestling instructor at the Newton Y. M. C. A. and is considered a finished performer. He is bulky and fast. He and Caddock will wrestle at or about 150 pounds.

"In leaving the ground there is practically no sensation. All is calm. The only feeling one gets is, that the earth is gradually and peacefully sinking away. I went a distance of about 160 miles, and at no time did I sense danger. A plane in an automobile would be a more strenuous in all respects, than the journey I had in the Zeppelin.

At the close of the lecture a dainty repast was served under the auspices of the ladies of the church, and Dr. Bell was extended a vote of thanks.
